New Crises Threaten Saigon Regime

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam appeared Wednesday night to be moving into its most dangerous crisis since becoming independent of France in 1954. Potential trouble mushroomed for Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh's U.S.-backed regime.

Buddhist critics watched the government warily on the eve of the anniversary of the pagoda raids in which the late President Ngo Dinh Diem's security forces arrested hundreds of monks and nuns last year. Student dissidents rallied again. About 200 challenged Khanh's right to the presidency, which he took over Sunday, and accused the United States of intervening in South Vietnamese domestic affairs at a noisy gathering in the student union headquarters. It was the first of a series of protest sessions scheduled to run into next week. The primary threat remains the Communist-led Viet Cong guerrillas. Viet Cong strength led Khanh to remark two weeks ago that "an enemy army now is inside South Viet Nam."

Congolese Rebels Threaten Bukavu

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The Communist-backed rebellion that grips most of the Eastern Congo threatened Tuesday night to wrest Bukavu from the control of Premier Moise Tshombe's government.

Fragmentary radio messages from Bukavu, a provincial capital mid-way between rebel-held Albertville and Stanleyville, said there was fighting in the streets; they indicated the Congolese army garrison was pulling out.

DROVE OFF BAND

The garrison, totalling about 800 troops, last weekend drove off a rebel band that had penetrated Bukavu's outskirts.

There was speculation the subsequent uprising may have been staged by a rebel fifth column within the city, a former tourist resort crowded lately with nearly 80,000 refugees.

PANIC REPORTED

The radio accounts said panic developed when the fighting broke out about 5 p.m. Subsequent messages gave the impression the Congolese troops were falling back toward the frontier of Rwanda, less than three miles away. Bukavu's airport in Rwanda and troops of that republic's Belgian-offered army share in guard duty at the airport.

BUKAVU IMPORTANT

Since Stanleyville fell two weeks ago, Bukavu has been the only important city in the northeastern Congo in government hands. Located on a peninsula jutting into Lake Kivu, it is the capital of central Kivu Province. Most of its white residents fled earlier this month when rebels were reported moving in from the west.

The Bukavu battle developed a few hours after Tshombe's government ordered deportation of all citizens of neighboring

New Satellite To Beam Olympic Games

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Syncom 3, a glittering "Olympic star" communications satellite, soared into a preliminary orbit Wednesday en route to a stationary outpost to televise the Olympic Games from Japan.

If the satellite successfully executes a number of complex manoeuvres in the next 12 days, it will come to a seeming standstill high above the mid-Pacific Ocean and be in position to speed to Canada, the United States and Europe television pictures of the Oct. 10-24 Games in Tokyo.

Syncom 3 is a research vehicle and TV is not its main assignment. But successful intercontinental transmission of pictures of the world's greatest sport spectacle would be dramatic evidence of what satellites can do to improve global communications.

The U.S. defence department also is considering use of the satellite to improve communications between Washington and South Viet Nam.

Syncom 3 showed early that it is ready to serve as a communications beacon in the sky. As it whizzed over the Pacific hours after launching from Cape Kennedy, it received and beamed back to a communications ship a recording of the music of The Star Spangled Banner. Voice and teletype communications also were successful.

United States, Japanese, Canadian and European interests have earmarked nearly $1,000,000 to demonstrate Olympic TV capability with the satellite. Practically none of the time difference. The major Olympic action will occur, for example, at hours when most North Americans are asleep.

Kennedy Out Friday

Attorney-General Robert Kennedy plans to resign Friday and announce he will be candidate for U.S. Senate seat from New York. Mayor Robert Wagner of New York is expected to endorse Kennedy publicly for senatorial nomination.

Wild Goat Gores Girl In B.C. Zoo

PENTICTON (CP)—A lingering look at a corralled mountain goat in a privately-owned museum and zoo has cost a little girl her life.

Police said Wednesday they believe Susan Dawn McMann, 7, leaned her head against three-inch fencing surrounding the corral as she dallied behind her parents and was gored by the animal's nine-inch horns.

"The family just heard a scream and saw the child lying on the ground outside the fence," said a police spokesman.

IN SECONDS

"It all happened in seconds. The family had only just turned their backs on the corral."

Victor McMann, the girl's father, drove the injured child in his own car to hospital here. Hospital authorities said the child died in the operating room Tuesday night about five hours after she was injured.

BRAIN DAMAGE

An autopsy revealed the girl suffered brain damage and that she had suffered a puncture wound in her forehead. Police said an inquest would be held but no date was immediately set.

The McManns, with their four other children, had been on holiday in the area for two weeks from their home at Ladner.

STOPPED AT ZOO

They had stopped at the zoo near Okanagan Falls, about 20 miles south of here.

"We were just going towards the car to leave," Mr. McMann said in a telephone interview.

"Susan was behind us still at the corral and no one saw what happened."

Brothers, Sister Drown

CORNWALL, N.Y. (AP) — A 12-year-old girl fell into Woodbury Creek Wednesday and her three brothers jumped in to save her.

None could swim, and all four died. The victims, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Perrone, of Cornwall, were identified by police as John Jr., 13, Dolores, 12, Tony, 10, and Rocco, 5.

Laura Conklin, 12, told police Dolores slipped from a rock and fell into the creek. Tony leaped in after her and the others followed him, she said.

Cornwall is in the southern part of New York State.

'There's Going to Be a Hit'

Threat to Goldwater Diverts GOP Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of a threat on the life of Senator Barry Goldwater, a plane carrying the Republican presidential nominee was diverted Wednesday from National Airport to Dulles International Airport outside Washington.

A waiting limousine took Goldwater, back from giving a speech in Springfield, Ill., away from Dulles Airport 28 miles from Washington. Goldwater's press secretary

Paul Wagner, said the senator's Lockheed Electra got orders in the air to switch from National, just outside Washington, and land at Dulles.

The nature of the threat was not immediately disclosed.

BOMB THREAT

Goldwater himself said he understood it was a bomb threat. But in Springfield, Ill., away from Dulles Airport 28 miles from Washington, Goldwater's press secretary

Chief Suarez said that at 12:32 p.m. the police department received a telephone call from a man who identified himself as Lieut. Bruce Allen.

The caller told Det. Sgt. John Nolan: "There is going to be a hit on Goldwater. Do you know what a hit is?"

The chief said that Nolan answered, "yes, that he's going to be shot."

Shoeshines Fun For Girls

Shoeshine stand operated by two Victoria teenagers is latest tourist service on the Caneway. Diane Stewart, on right, 14, of 1416 St. David and Elizabeth Brimacombe, 14, 880 Victoria, set up their stand this week. "We're just doing it for fun," said girls, both students at Oak Bay High School. — (Chapman Photography)

Port Alberni Claims Nearly All Settled

VANCOUVER (CP)—More than 700 claims totalling about $1,500,000 arose from Alaska tidal wave damage at Port Alberni. It was disclosed Wednesday by the Canadian Independent Adjusters Conference, which was retained by the provincial government to assess uninsured flood damage. When about 12 remaining claims have been settled, the total outlay will be about $1,450,000.

Canada Reaches for Red Arm

MONTREAL (CP)—Some national organizations may yet come forward with funds but the executive director of the Rehabilitation Institute at Montreal said Wednesday the institute will have to borrow enough money to pay for rights to the Soviet-made artificial arm.

The director, Dr. Gustave Gingras, saw the arm during a week's visit to the Soviet Union last month and was told he could have manufacturing rights to it for $27,000. Legal fees and other expenses involved in the acquisition would bring the cost to $30,800.

An appeal for funds was made July 24 and brought some contributions from individual donors, the director said, and several national organizations have indicated they might contribute to covering the cost.

"But this arm is so badly needed, I'll insist to the institute that we borrow the money and then do our best afterwards to cover the loan," Dr. Gingras said.

He said in an interview that the institute could develop a limb-motorized like the Soviet model—through its own efforts. But such development would take "enormous" amounts of money and two to four years of work.

The arm is driven by a motor based in the hand and controlled by electric signals picked up by electrodes in contact with muscles of the body. Dr. Gingras said the same principle could be used to develop a motorized artificial leg.

Individual arms could be bought from the Russians for about $700 each and parts could be purchased too. "The Russians don't seem to be in this to make money," Dr. Gingras said. "They are covering costs, that's all."

Turks Hold the Cork

Air Units Returned

ANKARA (UPI)—Turkey Wednesday threatened to close the strategic Bosphorus Strait to Soviet ships "if there is a danger of war" over Cyprus. The strait is Russia's only sea outlet to the Mediterranean.

Foreign Minister Feridun Cemal Erkin made the statement after being questioned about a Soviet freighter that was reported to be carrying war equipment to Cyprus.

"If Russia sends military aid to Cyprus we will act accordingly," the foreign minister said. "If there is a danger of war we might close the strait."

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Turkey and Greece announced Wednesday they are returning military units to the Atlantic Alliance that were withdrawn when the two neighbors seemed on the brink of war over Cyprus.

Capitals of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization had feared that the two NATO nations would come to blows and shatter the eastern flank of the West's defence line against any Soviet aggression.

Turkey was the first to announce that air units withdrawn from NATO during air raids on Greek-Cypriots on the northwest coast of Cyprus Aug. 8-9 were returned to Alliance control.

After an emergency meeting with King Constantine, Premier George Papandreu of Greece announced in Athens:

"Since Turkey returned her forces to NATO control, we will also return them."

Makarios Thanks Nikita

MOSCOW (UPI)—Cyprus President Makarios has sent a message to Premier Khrushchev thanking him for "sympathetic and powerful support" in the Cyprus crisis, the Soviet Tass agency reported Wednesday.

Land Use Meeting

Two Speakers Concerned Over Farms

The decline of farming as a paying occupation was a subject of concern for both speakers at a meeting on land use in the Saanich Peninsula, at the Brentwood Women's Institute Hall on Wednesday.

District horticulturist Alan Little warned that as Victoria grows, the urban area will spread onto land at present occupied by farms and that farmers will be faced with rising costs.

TAXES, RESTRAINT

Capt. C. R. Wilson, long-time resident and farmer in Saanich, spoke strongly on taxation, feeling that farmers might be unfairly dealt with when taxes are assessed. He also feared that in time farmers might be told that they could not dispose of their land as they wished, but must use it for farming.

"It would be grossly unfair to restrict a farmer so that he would not be able to sell his land to best advantage," said Capt. Wilson.

Next meeting of the series will be held Sept. 2 in Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall, with speakers still to be named. There will be a bus tour of the Saanich Peninsula on Sept. 12 to point out problems.

17,000 Critics Roar Approval of Beatles

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Beatles opened their second American tour Wednesday night and the critics shrieked.

The critics, 17,000 of them packed into San Francisco's Cow Palace, were of one voice—and it was a high-pitched scream of approval.

There were thousands more outside the building, but they were non-ticket-holding critics and as such had less to shout about.

The first one-night stand of this tour by the mop-tops from England was sandwiched somewhat appropriately between the Republican national convention and the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus.

The San Mateo County sheriff's office assigned 125 deputies to keep order—presumably selecting deputies who were not music lovers.

Prior to their opening the Beatles held their third news conference within 20 hours.

Moby Doll May Get Own Pen

VANCOUVER (CP)—Moby Doll, Vancouver's captive killer whale, should probably have her own permanent showplace pen, aquarium directors decided Wednesday.

"We'd be gambling on an animal which may or may not live," said director George Cunningham.

The directors asked curator Dr. Murray Newman to study possibilities and costs of a whale pen on the waterfront in the Greater Vancouver area.

But there should be a compromise on the present deadlock, he told the Commons.

Canadians would accept a solution with a sign of relief.

The solution could be the adoption of a single-leaf flag instead of the government's proposed three-leaf design, and the Red Ensign could replace the Union Jack as the flag proposed to symbolize Canada's Commonwealth membership.

A single-leaf would be the simplest, strongest and most distinctive design, and it couldn't be considered the flag of a single party.

Mr. Brewin was the first speaker in the 11th day of the flag debate and he issued an appeal for moderation. An unduly prolonged debate would be extremely damaging to Parliament and the country, and since all the main issues had been discussed—which they had beaten off after an hour's fight and then ran into mines laid by a government patrol. The patrol reported some were killed by the mines.

Tan Uyen is a district capital 20 miles north of Saigon.

Farther north, the guerrillas infiltrated a strategic hamlet in Binh Dinh Province and captured 114 of the defenders.

A continuing build-up of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam was reflected by an announcement that the roll had risen to 17,300 as of last Thursday.

The Congolese premier said he was satisfied by this evidence of Mulele's death.

Flag Compromise

One Leaf, Ensign NDP Suggestion

OTTAWA (CP)—A New Democratic Party M.P. suggested Wednesday the Commons flag fight be settled by approval of a new Canadian flag with one maple leaf and the Red Ensign as the symbol of Canada's membership in the Commonwealth.

Andrew Brewin (Toronto Greenwood) opposed a Conservative sub-amendment calling for a plebiscite on the flag issue, saying it would be "evasion of our responsibilities as elected members."

"I believe we were elected in this House to take the burden of decisions."

But there should be a compromise on the present deadlock, he told the Commons.

Canadians would accept a solution with a sign of relief.

The solution could be the adoption of a single-leaf flag instead of the government's proposed three-leaf design, and the Red Ensign could replace the Union Jack as the flag proposed to symbolize Canada's Commonwealth membership.

Reports persisted in Leopoldville that Peking-trained Pierre Mulele, the most notorious of the rebel leaders, had been killed in Kivu Province. But diplomatic sources said the 33-year-old former Congolese education minister was alive and well in Leopoldville.

there was no purpose in making emotional speeches.

While the feelings of constituents must be taken into account, he said, the over-riding issue in the flag debate should be the unity of Canada.

Edward Nassen (PC—Rosetown) followed Mr. Brewin with the 81st speech of the flag debate. He said the flag resolution was a trivial manoeuvre by the most careless prime minister in the history of Canada.

The government was trying to drive the wedge of division to a general election if necessary, "one of the most pitiful and shameful manoeuvres ever undertaken by a prime minister."

He said the maple leaf flag is being held out as a gesture to Quebec.

Steve Otto (L—York East), Toronto lawyer and manufacturing executive, pleaded with MPs to "get this thing over with."

The Red Ensign had become the banner of English-speaking reaction, he said.

David Pugh (PC—Okanagan-Boundary) said the government has got Canada into an "unholy divisive mess."

The government had no mandate to do away with the Red Ensign. In his riding in the last election campaign, the Liberal candidate had denied that a Liberal government would replace the Ensign.

C. E. Millar (PC—Middlesex East) said the government has broken faith with every person who ever served in Canada's armed forces.

Underwear Tokyo-Style

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese authorities are trying to discourage Tokyo males from public appearances in their underwear.

Because of a heat wave and the excellent air conditioning at Tokyo airport, hundreds of men have been flocking to relax in its cool lounges in underpants, undershirts and sandals, oblivious to the stares of foreigners.

Douglas Charges:

'UN Screens Makarios'

OTTAWA (UPI)—New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas suggested today that Archbishop Makarios is working "behind the screen" of the United Nations "systematically seeking to liquidate his opposition."

Douglas asked external affairs minister Paul Martin if this conclusion could be drawn from the agreement reached between the UN and Makarios on the partial lifting of a blockade against the Turkish Cypriots.

"Does this not make it a fact that the government of Cyprus has been blockading the Turkish Cypriots and seeking to starve them into submission?"

Martin replied only that Douglas' "commentary will stand and will speak for itself."

He said, however, that an agreement has been reached through the United Nations with the government of Cyprus agree-best understands Communism." Goldwater, Republican presidential nominee for the Nov. 3 U.S. general election, charged that under the present administration the U.S. had "become so weak that aggressors have been tempted to plunge the world into war."

Goldwater's remarks on foreign policy and on civil rights, which he did not mention by name, drew the loudest applause from more than 12,000 persons who attended Republican Day festivities at the Illinois State Fair.

Outside the grandstand where Goldwater was speaking a group of 18 pickets representing the Congress of Racial Equality marched up and down silently. They displayed placards which said: "Democracy—not Goldwater" and "Goldwater must go."

Three members of a group called the American Peoples Movement of Chicago staged anti-C.O.R.E. picketing. One of their signs said: "A good Communist is a dead Communist."

There were no incidents during Goldwater's two-hour visit. His assistants said he was not even aware of the pickets. Tight security prevailed, with almost 200 policemen assigned to special duty.

He added that there would be no unilateral withdrawal of Canadian troops until such time as the UN decided this should be done.

Cut-Off Date Eased In House

OTTAWA (CP)—The Sept. 1 cut-off date for amnesty for Chinese immigrants who are in Canada illegally will apply only to newly-landed immigrants, Citizenship Minister Tremblay said in the Commons Wednesday.

He said Friday that Chinese immigrants who entered Canada illegally would have until Sept. 1 to come forward.

On Monday, the first office day following the original announcement, more than 400 Chinese immigrants came forward. "In view of this," Mr. Tremblay said, "the date of Sept. 1 will apply only to individuals entering Canada on or after that date."

Kennedy:

Insist On Law In Rights

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Attorney General Robert Kennedy called Wednesday on Democratic Party platform writers to condemn racial lawlessness by both whites and Negroes in the field of civil rights.

But Negro leader James Farmer said his followers would stage "direct action" demonstrations at the Democratic national convention next week to protest "the Goldwaterism found in both parties."

Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, told the platform committee that such "constant public reminders" are needed for the nation to face racial problems and serve also "as a way to channel the justifiable frustrations and anger of the Negro community."

CORE pickets marched outside the Sheraton Park Hotel while Farmer was making his prepared statement.

Counterfeit Bills 'Almost Perfect'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Almost perfect counterfeit $20 bills are being circulated in Greater Vancouver, police reported Wednesday.

Five of the bills were spotted by alert cashiers and turned over to police since the weekend.

"They are as good as any phony 20s I've seen," said one RCMP officer.

Police believed the bills were printed by a Montreal-based gang which has used at least 111 different serial numbers.

Similar bills were first spotted and turned over to the RCMP July 3, in Montreal, Toronto and Windsor.

Police said the bills can be spotted by checking a list of known serial numbers or comparing the back with a genuine $20 bill. The counterfeit money has a washed-out appearance.

Three Men Dead On Marooned Boat

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—Three northern affairs department employees were found dead Tuesday in a marooned motorboat on Hudson Bay 72 miles north of Churchill. They were believed to be victims of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Dead are Odette Berjman, 59, department area administrator at Eskimo Point, and two Eskimos, Alex Gibbons, 23, assistant administrator and translator, and Rene Aggarik, 46, a department laborer at Eskimo Point.

Coule Dam Hit by Fire

COULEE DAM, Wash. (AP)—Officials at Grand Coulee Dam said full extent of damage in Tuesday's transformer fire was still not known late Wednesday. Project manager W. E. Rawlins said the fire was caused when an electrical arc caused between a generator being turned on and a transformer. The transformer broke and set off its cooling oil.

Smoke was sucked into the ventilating system, filling the plant with toxic fumes. Some tourists required oxygen treatment, and two dam workers were sent to hospital after inhaling fumes.

Honest!

Can't Quit? Smoke 'Less'

TORONTO (CP)—More or Less Honest Manufacturing Company has been registered as a new unincorporated business at Osgoode Hall, a company spokesman announced Wednesday.

The spokesman said the concern will be a distributor, with its first product being Less brand cigarettes. The company was registered by David Griff, Samuel Markle, Jack Markle and Irvin Pitch, all Toronto business men.

Samuel Markle said the idea for the company and its first product could be summed up in the slogan "if you can't quit, smoke Less." He said the distribution of other products will follow.

John D Queries Banks' Elusiveness

OTTAWA (UPI)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker suggested Wednesday the government conduct a "probe" into the ease with which the "elusive" Hal Banks has eluded a nation-wide police search.

Banks, deposed Canadian head of the Seafarers International Union, is wanted in Canada on writs issued in both civil and criminal courts. Mr. Diefenbaker asked if there would be an investigation into the degree with which this man is able to flout the laws of this country.

He said the probe would "remove some of the suspicions in the minds of people regarding the elusive nature of Banks."

Justice Minister Guy Favreau said in effect that there was nothing to investigate.

The Gander

BUS users and municipalities won't be amused but they can't fail to be intrigued by the ambivalence of the B.C. Hydro mind when it comes to totting the profits and losses.

In addition to buses and light and power Hydro is in the railway business; not an extensive length of track but one which nevertheless netted it a profit of a million dollars last year.

This figure is not exact but it is close enough to please Hydro officials, who say they can't separate railway operations from the other aspects of Hydro affairs.

What is sauce for the goose is apparently not sauce for the gander when it comes to buses.

Here a very definite separation is being effected by the crown agency as it seeks to raise the fares, in inequitable and harmful degree.

What is good enough for the Hydro railway should certainly be good enough for the Hydro buses. What industrial companies of varied enterprises do is to balance the swings and the roundabouts, to offset the losses of one operation by the profits of another; in the Hydro case buses as compared to light and power and, as is now sharply to be noted, its railway.

It is inexplicable to the public mind why Hydro should have a dual financial policy that puts the buses at a discount to its other operations; separating these to suit its balance sheets by embracing those which run at a profit. The government of which it is a handmaiden has both revenue and expenditure departments but these contribute to and draw from the same consolidated fund.

Why not similar treatment when it comes to buses? The latter are simply one phase of B.C. Hydro's combined operations.

Right Direction

IT WILL BE a hopeful sign to all who value their safety on the roads and highways of British Columbia that the deputy attorney-general thinks compulsory testing of vehicles would be a good thing. Even though no plans for such a system are afoot, this is an indication that official thought is moving in the right direction. It may well be too that the mobile testing unit which has started its operations in Victoria, on a voluntary basis and with "educational" intent, will hasten the day of obligatory examination and correction.

One can hardly doubt that it already has contributed meaningfully to the education of drivers and the authorities alike, when in its first full day's work it found a third of the cars submitted to be defective. Even though in this instance caution and conscience alone will call for repairs, without compulsion or time limit, it is most unlikely that owners knowing their vehicles to be in poor shape would be well represented among those seeking the seal of approval or alternatively the detailed account of their woes. In other words, the results can only be indicative of a much higher percentage of cars with safety deficiencies on the general scene.

The treasurer of the B.C. Automobile Association expressed the opinion in a Vancouver talk last week that 70 miles an hour, along a highway engineered for high speed, in a car in good mechanical condition, was safe. He left out a few "ifs", surely, but he included one of the biggest in his reference to the state of vehicles using the freeway, and it is obviously of increasing applicability elsewhere as traffic speeds and densities climb.

The findings of the new testing station, even on a voluntary basis, serves to emphasize how big an "if" this is becoming and how needful the appropriate corrective action.

MILITIA units encouraged by Associate Defence Minister Cardin's views a month ago on overall strengths and effective personnel will have their hopes dampened again by his latest word on the subject.

He has reversed himself—for the second time. At the outset he declared that the reserve force, numbering around 50,000, would be cut to a total of about 30,000. Later, having the facts of life pointed out to him, he agreed that to have the latter figure available for immediate call the 50,000 quota would probably have to be retained.

This suggested a review of the defence department's plan to disband or amalgamate a number of units, something that induced the militia to breathe more freely again.

Now Mr. Cardin is back where he started. He says now the goal will be, overall, a numerical strength of 30,000.

The associate defence minister apologizes for having, as he puts it, confused the issue. It seems more likely that in relation to the militia his department doesn't know quite what it wants.

In the result of course militia units all across the country will be in a state of hiatus, uncertain exactly what their future is to be, with consequent damaging effect on their training and operations.

As militia men know there is a gap between total strengths and effective strengths. Mr. Cardin hopes to cure this by making it tougher to get into the reserve force; by age limits, stiffer requirements, compulsory length of service perhaps, and more selective recruiting.

That will make it more difficult than ever for units to attract men to the voluntary part-time military role that is the essence of their being. And it leaves them still in a quandary about their future and the problem of numerical and effective strengths.

But of course Mr. Cardin may change his mind again, belonging as he does to a government becoming noted for half-baked ideas.

Needed at Home

MR. HELLYER: One of the incidents which I should like to relate—and this is true—is this. One of our deployments in a most difficult area is directly between the outposts of the two Greek and Turkish communities. Periodically firing would commence between the two outposts, and a young corporal 21 years of age would pick up the phone and say: "Now, you cut that out." And they did. It may be a strange kind of war, but I can tell you, Mr. Speaker, that our young men have been very effective. . . .

Mr. Knowles: You had better send that boy home. We could use him in this house.

Thinking Aloud

By TOM TAYLOR

WELL, things are looking up. We, meaning the country of Canada, are approaching the 20 million mark in the count of human personnel.

This is the only count that counts, if you will excuse a feeble pun. A country is nothing if it isn't the abode of a nation.

And a nation is a collection of people.

Otherwise a country is just an area of land and water. It wouldn't even be called a country did people not label it as such.

In the parlance of the human family when we refer to places like India, Chile, or, say, Nigeria or any other, we mean primarily — unless it's a travelogue showing the terrain, and even so people are mentioned — the inhabitants thereof.

Russia doesn't in the abstract shoot things up to the moon, or Canada fashion for itself a new flag, but its citizens, or more correctly its government, do.

The nation is the country and vice versa.

And the more people a nation has the more it thrives or falls into difficulties. Some countries have more heads than they can comfortably support and house, but Canada is not one of them. It has lots of room and for long it will take a deal of filling up, humanwise, to call a modern phraseology.

And, as I say, things are looking up. When I came to this country the population was around eight millions; now that figure is nearly trebled.

Not very speedy multiplication, perhaps, in the like of many other lands. About 25th in the world standing of national peoples and their countries, although even that figure may surprise you. Knowing well the vast area of Canada and its comparatively few inhabitants you might have put this domination further down the list.

We like to think we are important to the world scene, of course, exceeding in influence and contribution other lands of similar population. Countries like Burma, perhaps, or Persia, Ethiopia or Rourania, roughly about the same numerical count. Although these nations will have their own ideas about this.

But with its spacious richness, natural resources and opportunities, Canada should loom to valuable global purpose to deserve its favored place in the sun.

Twenty million people in a world containing billions is not many, admittedly, and as the human family expands to degrees that give grave anxiety about the future this seems but a drop in the ocean, as it were. The more so therefore that as a nation we should strive for greatness in the human sense.

However, we are making headway, one hopes, not alone in the number who claim this country as their home but also in the quality of a nation that can be of peaceful aid and comfort to those less happily endowed.

It is a startling heritage, all things considered, that we should be heirs to a boundless domain of such wealth and proportion. And the study of populations everywhere across the globe reaches of this earth should make us appreciate our good fortune.

And manage to compose our domestic affairs with a sense of humility and thankfulness.

We shall look up with warrant as we add further to our numbers if we comport ourselves with wisdom and prudent exercise of our blessings.

There to Speak His Mind

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

ROUGHRIDER Ralph Cowan, Liberal MP for the Toronto constituency of York-Humber, must surely be the most outspokenly independent-minded member of this or any Parliament since that old political fireball, Jean Francois Pouliot of TransCanada coiled off and retired to the Senate.

Each time he rises to speak in the Commons, the Liberals, from Prime Minister Pearson down the line to the most obscure government backbencher, sit and squirm, cringing, and trying quietly and hopelessly to "fashish" the Roughrider.

And each time, the gleeful Conservatives beat their desks and joyously cheer him on, hoping to fan the flames of his burning indignation.

But Roughrider Ralph requires neither encouragement nor will tolerate discouragement.

Equally oblivious to both, he came to Parliament Hill in the 1962 election, firmly believing that the voters send their MPs to Ottawa to speak their minds.

And Ralph Cowan has been speaking his in what are the loudest, clearest, and free-swinging tones to rock the often shocked Commons.

Lowest and clearest, because he speaks as Ralph Cowan, free and independent individual MP, and not, like so many others in all parties, government and opposition alike, as a cog in the party machine.

On that basis alone, this dogged determination to speak his mind, rather than the party's, he's a rare bird indeed.

Roughrider Ralph believes two things, politically.

And with passion. He hates the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation as much as he loves the Canadian Red Ensign and the Union Jack.

For two years the prime minister and party pandemics have been hoping Ralph Cowan might find, even by fortunate accident, how to use the soft pedal.

But it's been two years of fortissimo, with a crashing crescendo just the other day.

Drums of August

By CASSANDRA from London

OH the booms and the bangs, and the whimpers of young children who know not what their elders and their betters are up to! Here we have this fellow Mr. A. G. Soteriades, the Cypriot high commissioner to Britain, saying:

"Cyprus will not reconsider its position even if a third world war is going to happen, so far as Cyprus is concerned. 'You want to avoid a third world war; those who want to avoid it, let them do what they can to avoid it, but Cyprus will not do it. For the sake of fighting a third world war we are not prepared to make any concessions.'"

Odd chap, this Soteriades. Anybody who says that he will go to the limit of a third world war—a thousand Hiroshimas in two hours for the sake of a contentious island in the Eastern Mediterranean—seems to me to be not a very judicial, balanced or serene man.

As a mild point of interest—"to-atomic-bell-with-the-rest-of-the-world-and-up Makarios" Soteriades and I have exchanged views before.

When on June 19 this year I said that 683 Turkish-Cypriots had been abducted and were missing, Mr. Soteriades wrote to my editor saying that "neither my government nor myself are in possession of information to this alarming effect." And would I explain.

Note the word "alarming." I replied to the high commissioner of Cyprus saying that my authority was U Thant, the secretary-general of the United Nations.

There was no rejoinder. His alarm subsided with the truth.

The terrible thing is that people of no political consequence, such as the high commissioner of Cyprus, CAN help to explode a world war—certainly the last in the dreadful Twentieth Century Series.

Sarajevo, which was in a place called Bosnia that Europe hadn't heard of, was the site where an archduke, who in the real terms of power politics meant nothing, was murdered and became the detonator of the most horrible war that mankind has ever seen—not excluding the more lethal affray of the '40s.

All the puppets can be swept away and mankind is still left to mourn its innumerable dead. It seems to me to be so terrible that in this lovely August of 1964 we should be going through the preliminaries of the same old death-dance that we did in the brief days of August, 1914; that in the sunshine of 1939 (how Mars loves good spread throughout the world.

It seems to me to be so terrible that in this lovely August of 1964 we should be going through the preliminaries of the same old death-dance that we did in the brief days of August, 1914; that in the sunshine of 1939 (how Mars loves good spread throughout the world.

There was no rejoinder. His alarm subsided with the truth.

The terrible thing is that people of no political consequence, such as the high commissioner of Cyprus, CAN help to explode a world war—certainly the last in the dreadful Twentieth Century Series.

Sarajevo, which was in a place called Bosnia that Europe hadn't heard of, was the site where an archduke, who in the real terms of power politics meant nothing, was murdered and became the detonator of the most horrible war that mankind has ever seen—not excluding the more lethal affray of the '40s.

All the puppets can be swept away and mankind is still left to mourn its innumerable dead. BACKGROUND

Vietcong, U.S. Poised for Clash

By EDWARD NEILAN
From Saigon

It appears that the Communist Vietcong will turn up the flame very soon under the guerrilla war in South Viet Nam.

The Vietcong, through their own clandestine radio, and the North Vietnamese, from Hanoi, have threatened retaliation for the U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam.

The Hanoi Red newspaper Nam Dhan says: "All units have been ordered to step up action on all fronts."

It is expected that the Vietcong will step up raids gradually to a peak in early September. An American official in Saigon whose job it is to chart North Vietnamese reactions, believes the hour is near for the Vietcong to strike back hard. Some Americans feel the next few weeks in the war will be decisive.

Record Heat Hits Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Record temperatures were set Tuesday in Medicine Hat and Penhold, Alta.

The weather office said the thermometer reached 98 degrees in Medicine Hat, eclipsing the previous Aug. 18 record of 96 degrees.

Penhold had a reading of 89 degrees, four degrees higher than the 1955 record for the day.

The situation takes on new dimensions also with the approaching Democratic convention and U.S. presidential election.

The United States has apparently decided on a course of action.

While admitting that the war must be won inside South Viet Nam, it is becoming increasingly apparent that new strikes against North Viet Nam may be in the offing. If North Viet Nam steps up the war in the south the United States will strike at supply lines.

There are some appropriate supply line targets in Laos near the North Vietnamese border. Roads leading to the base at Teopone in Laos are lined with supply trucks.

After reaching the base the supplies are broken down to be carried on human backs through the Ho Chi Minh Trail to Vietcong bases in South Viet Nam.

These strikes would have some effect on the war in the south but would not be decisive. Their main effect would be political in the context of the U.S. elections in November.

The war must be won in the south on the ground and among the Vietnamese people.

Lunatic Tragedy of Cyprus Civil War

Handful of Ambitious Men Could Drag World to Brink

By the Columnist's EDWIN ROTH, from Nicosia

In the blazing August heat of Cyprus, when Greek-Cypriots bombarded Turkish-Cypriot villages with artillery, when Turkish jet planes raided the Greek-Cypriots, and when it seemed that the Cyprus civil war would at any moment explode into full war between Greece and Turkey, young Lieutenant Gilles Cote from Quebec showed me a large signboard in the command post of the Canadian UN troops in the Turkish-held mountains of northern Cyprus. Written on it in block letters is the prayer:

"God give me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change; the courage to change the things I can; and the wisdom to know the difference."

This prayer is the unofficial motto of the Canadian UN troops—and of all other UN troops in Cyprus.

Most of all they need the serenity to accept what they cannot change. Since their arrival in Cyprus, UN troops in their sky-blue caps beneath their large sky-blue flags could change nothing.

They observe—whenever the Greeks or the Turks allow them to observe anything—and they report. Sometimes they evacuate women and children, and search for wounded in no-man's land.

And sometimes they bring neutral newsmen who get pinned down by cross-fire to safety. (This is reported with the personal gratitude of this correspondent who has been rescued four times by UN soldiers from very unhealthy spots.)

In the Canadian command post beside the Turkish-occupied Nicosia-Kyrenia highway—the only Cyprus main highway still held by the Turks—and immediately beneath the Turkish-occupied, much-fought-over St. Hilarion Castle, there are radios, telephones, typewriters, and hundreds of typewritten reports.

But the only really significant thing is the prayer on the wall, because all UN soldiers are powerless.

They are forbidden to shoot unless they themselves are shot at first. They cannot disarm anybody anywhere. They cannot give anybody any orders. And any teen-aged Greek-Cypriot or Turkish-Cypriot "special policeman" can tell them to get out of any area, because they are in his country.

The United Nations did not create the precarious, hate-packed cease-fire after the Turkish air raids. The orders to cease fire came from Athens and Ankara, after the UN Security Council had held emergency sessions, and after President Johnson had exerted heavy pressure.

All UN officials in Cyprus are as powerless as their sweating blue-capped soldiers in the battle zones.

We correspondents get official news from the small, 45-year-old Mexican UN spokesman Cesare Ortiz, or from his 35-year-old assistant Aaron Sum Chwal, whose home is in Bangkok, Thailand.

But their news is not always reliable, because their job is to defend the prestige (and sometimes the mistakes) of the world organization which pays their tax-free salary.

Official propaganda statements to correspondents by the official Greek-Cypriot government spokesman are as unreliable

MAKARIOS
... No. 3 man

as similar propaganda by the Turkish-Cypriot spokesman. The only absolute truth in Cyprus today is the old proverb that truth is the first casualty of war.

For many weeks, soldiers and war material from Greece and Soviet war material sent via Egypt has been unloaded in the Greek-Cypriot ports and taken to the Troodos mountains. UN soldiers were not allowed to observe this.

The Turks landed soldiers and war material from Turkey in northwestern areas of Cyprus controlled by the Turks. But Turkish help for the Turkish Cypriots was much less than Greek, Egyptian and Soviet help for the Greek Cypriots.

The two most important men on the Greek-Cypriot side are the Greek general George Grivas, who from 1955 until 1960 led the Greek Cypriots armed fight against British colonial rule, and his former adjutant, Polykarpos Georgiadis, who saved himself from the British gallows by escaping from a British prison hospital, and is now the Greek-Cypriot Interior Minister.

Both these men are infinitely more important and powerful than Archbishop Makarios.

According to reports from Athens—and the entire picture in Nicosia confirms these reports—Makarios promised Greek Prime Minister Papandreu to make no further military attacks against the besieged Turkish Cypriots.

Whether Makarios himself broke his promise, or whether other men acted above his head, there are several versions and theories.

Of course the Greek-Cypriots say that the Turks began shooting to provoke a Turkish invasion. This is possible.

The Turkish-Cypriots' real leader is 40-year-old bald-headed, dynamic lawyer-politician Raouf

Denktash, whom the British paid very well for his special services to the British Empire. (Turkish-Cypriot Vice-President Dr. Fazil Kutchuk is an insignificant, ineffectual figurehead.)

Denktash has been in Turkey since March. Cyprus is much too small for a man of his great political talent, and Denktash is now becoming what he always wanted to be—a big-time Turkish politician inside Turkey.

For Turkey, Cyprus means so much national emotion, and Denktash could become a great danger to the regime of octogenarian Prime Minister Ismet Inonu if Inonu does not actively support the besieged Turkish-Cypriots.

Denktash is now a national hero in Turkey—an excellent start for the future Turkish political career of this gifted and immensely ambitious young man.

The Turkish air raids were the inevitable result of this situation.

General Grivas, who was born in Cyprus but took Greek nationality to become a professional Greek officer, is angry because the Greek-Cypriots got no support from the Greek air force.

But all Turkish-Cypriots are bitterly disappointed because they had become convinced that the Turkish army was at last invading Cyprus.

In fact, Papandreu wants to avoid war with Turkey as much as Inonu wants to avoid war with Greece.

It is the lunatic tragedy of the Cyprus civil war that Raouf Denktash and a few Turkish-Cypriots, or Grivas and a few Greek-Cypriots—all enormously ambitious men—could today cause war between Greece and Turkey, which would bring the world to the brink of a third world war.

Britain to Withdraw Troops from Libya

By STEPHEN FAY
from London

The Libyan government is expected to announce this week that Britain will withdraw her two battalions of troops, about 1,500 in all, from their bases in Tripoli and Benghazi.

The move follows months of negotiation between the British and Libyan governments on the future of British bases and demands by the Libyan parliament that all British bases be closed.

The large U.S. base at Wheelus Field in Libya has not yet been subjected to the same parliamentary pressure as the British bases and it is unlikely that the Americans will be asked to leave.

The announcement will be the first of a series affecting Britain's military position in North Africa.

Police End Shooting Spree

A boy was shot in the forehead by a BB gun Tuesday evening and later that night a man reported marks on his car's windshield which he thought were caused by BB pellets.

Ten-year-old Mohender Singh, 3420 Wascana, was released from St. Joseph's Hospital at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday after having a pellet removed early the night before.

Saanich police have spoken to the boy responsible for the accident, and also to his parents, who have taken the gun away from their son.

In Victoria later Tuesday night, J. Leadley, 229 Government Street, reported to police that while he was driving on Douglas near Avon, two rock marks appeared on his windshield. He suspected a BB gun. Inspector R. G. Maitland of the Victoria police department emphasized that those who have BB guns must show discretion in their use and that parents have a responsibility of supervision when they hand out such guns to their children.

Sports, Concerts, Tours Slated For 1,200 Japanese Sailors

Softball, band concerts, bus tours and smokers are just a few of the activities planned for the visit of 1,200 Japanese aboard four destroyer-escorts of that country's maritime self-defence force Aug. 26 to 30.

The Japanese sailors will be officially welcomed by Rear-Admiral W. M. Landymore at HMCS Dockyard at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 26.

The four ships will be under the command of Rear-Admiral Kazutoshi Kuhara, Japan's top sea-going training commander, sailing in the flagship Teruaki. The other destroyers are the Ariake, Yugure and Makinami. Among the sailors are 161 officer cadets.

TO LAY WREATH
Rear-Admiral Kuhara will lay a wreath at the Esquimalt cenotaph and will call on Lieutenant-Governor Peckham, Premier Bennett, Mayor R. B. Wilson and Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele.

The Japanese will give two band concerts in Beacon Hill Park, one Aug. 26 and one Aug. 27, both at 7:30 p.m.

The Japanese officers will be luncheon guests at Government House and will be given a reception at HMCS Naden wardroom. Smokers have been planned for chiefs, POs and seamen.

The ships will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to noon, and from 1:30 to 4 p.m. Aug. 29.

SOFTBALL GAME
There will be a softball game between the RCN and Japanese seamen at 6:30 p.m. Aug. 26 on the lower playing field at HMCS Naden.

The ships will depart at 8 a.m. Aug. 30 for Vancouver where they will stay until Sept. 2.

Two Busloads, Hundreds More To See Beatles

Only two bus loads of about 600 teenagers will be leaving Victoria Saturday to see the Beatles in Vancouver.

But there are many hundreds more believed to be making the trip alone—or with their parents.

"We didn't have the response we expected for our round-trip offer," said J. A. R. Gauthier, of Vancouver Island Coach Lines. "So we've limited the trip to two bus-loads."

The teenagers, under escort, will be shuttled to Vancouver by coach and ferry—and will return the same night after the Beatles' show, by charter plane.

Meanwhile hundreds of other teenagers in Victoria and on Vancouver Island have made their own plans to see the phenomenally successful mop-haired quartet from Liverpool, England.

In Vancouver, wire fencing and more than 200 police officers will prevent the fans from getting too close to their idols—both at the Georgia Hotel where they have rented a floor, and at the Empire Stadium.

Even the hotel's fire escape will have a police guard and barbed-wire barrier.

The Beatles will arrive early Saturday after an appearance in Seattle.

Meanwhile, for the fans who are not going to see the group in person, their first movie, A Hard Day's Night, opens Friday at Victoria's Capitol Theatre.

EXTRA STAFF
And even at the theatre extra commissionaires have been hired in case of any hysterical outbreaks.

Manager Alec Reid advises adults who want to see the film—and hear the soundtrack—to go in the evenings. "It will be quieter then," he says.

Fire Department Fights Flooding

Inundated overnight by two feet of water, the furnace room of Metropolitan Stores, 1222 Douglas, was finally pumped out by noon Wednesday by the fire department. A call to them for help had come in at 10:30 a.m.

"For the amount of water, the damage is slight," reported an official at the store. Equipment was being checked yesterday afternoon to ensure continued efficient heating.

The flood was believed due to a faulty water main.

Man Seeking Northampton Expatriates

There must be someone from Northampton among Victoria's hundreds of settled English people.

If there is, W. H. Osborne, 208 The Headlands, Northampton, England, would like to hear from them.

Mr. Osborne is thinking of coming to Victoria to settle, along with his wife and two children.

He has written for information on the city to the Victoria Visitors' Bureau, and now wants to correspond with someone from his home town.

"His writing to us speaks well of Victoria," said a Visitors' Bureau spokesman. "Our city is becoming better known each year."

UAR Wants Nuclear Halt

GENEVA (AP)—The United Arab Republic called Thursday for a halt in the planning for a proposed western multi-lateral nuclear force. It was the first time a non-aligned delegation to the 17-nation disarmament conference has submitted a formal proposal directly affecting the controversial project.

Pickup a Bit Heavy

MALIBU, Calif.—Some men in sleek, little convertibles pick up girls. Gordon Buck, 29, picked up a horse. One minute, Buck was doing 65 miles an hour in his little European car on Highway 101A; the next, he had a horse, named Gambler in the front seat beside him. The car had hit Gambler in the rear, flipping him into the seat. Buck swerved off the road; Gambler got out and galloped away.

OTTAWA—Commander A. B. Fraser-Harris, 47, assistant chief of naval staff, whose retirement eight years before normal retirement age was announced Wednesday, said his job was one of those being done away with in the current armed forces integration program and he had asked to be retired. "I have no complaint at all. I have been in for 35 years and I've always obeyed orders."

Fraser-Harris

TORONTO—Nola Brown, 23-year-old housewife who has won Dominion marksmanship medals with her rifle, has been bound over to keep the peace for two years, on charges of possessing a dangerous weapon and discharging a firearm in a public place. Ice-cream truck driver Andrew Black told Magistrate M. J. Canny that Mrs. Brown shouted at him to get off the street and then shot out one of his tires.

VANCOUVER—A fisherman identified only as Clifford Edwards was rescued by helicopter from McGuinness Island, about 300 miles northwest of Vancouver, after his boat sank.

MEDFORD, Ore.—Mrs. Anton Mische, bitten by a red fox as she walked across her driveway, was treated for rabies in Medford Hospital.

VANCOUVER—Virginia Iaxhe, 33, who is five feet tall and weighs 125 pounds, has been charged with assaulting motorcyclist policeman D. C. Arthurs, 26, who is six feet tall and weighs 225 pounds and who gave her a speeding ticket.

HAIFA, Israel—"I am an artist, not a politician," snapped Italian actress Sophia Loren after hearing a report that Arab embassies in Italy were investigating to determine whether her movie Judith should be banned in Arab countries. Judith is being filmed in Israel.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.—Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller has begun a court battle for the four children of her first marriage, whose custody she relinquished at the time of her divorce from Dr. James Murphy.

VANDERHOOF—Ronnie Primes, 13, was flown to Vancouver unconscious and in fair condition from a bullet wound in the head. He was injured when a .22-calibre rifle held by his six-year-old brother discharged while they were picking berries.

ATHENS—King Constantine returned here from his summer palace on Corfu to confer with Premier George Papandreu, the opposition leader and U.S. Ambassador Henry Labouisse about the Cyprus government's approach to the Soviet Union for military aid and the disengagement of Greek forces from NATO.

WOODFIBRE—RCMP said they believe that Albert Kaud-son, 27, of Vancouver, drowned after falling into a creek near here. His body was found after he failed to return from a weekend hiking trip.

SAN FRANCISCO—Mrs. Gertrude Goodman, 50, was beaten unconscious, shot and robbed in her room at the Hilton Hotel. Her screams for help mistaken by a maid for shrieks of 2,000 girls waiting outside for the Beatles.

BARCELONA—Painter Salvador Dali, whose works command high prices, is doing a new one called Deification of the Dollar. Dali said the painting will be "just dollars and more dollars."

QUEBEC—Premier Lesage announced that four by-elections will be held Oct. 5 to fill vacancies in Quebec's legislative assembly.

TORONTO—Deputy Attorney General William O'Connor said no warrant has been issued for the arrest of Northern Ontario Natural Gas president Ralph K. Farris because of his illness. Farris, 53, of Vancouver, reported seriously ill with cancer, was convicted of perjury in April and was sentenced to nine months' definite and three months' indefinite.

KIRKLAND LAKE—Rescue workers have abandoned hope of finding alive two miners trapped by a rock burst at the 4,000-foot level in the Wright-Hargreaves Mine. Mine officials believe Donald Yaworski, 45, and Edouard Ducharme, 55, both of Kirkland Lake, were crushed instantly by the cave-in.

BEERSHEBA, Israel—Sheli Reikman, 64, has received 25 cable offers from women in the United States who want to join his harem, and announced the whole thing was a mistake. "Why should I pay $50,000 for a woman when I can get a Bedouin virgin for $3,000?" he asked. He denied that he had recently advertised for an American wife, offering $50,000 for one.

LONDON—The late Countess

bor prime minister from 1945 to 1951, left an estate of $158,856 when she died last June.

TORONTO—Mr. Justice E. L. Malen ordered the Crown to provide more detailed information in the charges against Chatham United Church minister Rev. Russell Hornsby, 45. He said the eight charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency did not contain sufficient evidence. Hornsby is accused of providing a place for permitting or encouraging sexual intercourse between juveniles.

Death Involved Alcohol Coroner's Jury Rules

Accidental death contributed to by alcohol was the finding of a coroner's jury Wednesday in the death of Arthur Mahoney Aug. 9.

Mr. Mahoney suffered a fractured skull Aug. 6 from a fall in the Fairfield Hotel. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. The verdict was returned by the jury to coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre at 2:30 p.m., after being out for only five minutes.

Tax Help for Canada

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Congress sent the foreign securities tax bill to President Johnson Wednesday to be signed into law.

He is also expected to sign at the same time the special exemption for Canada on new securities issues. This exemption was pledged, to be exercised at presidential discretion, after Canadian government protests about driving up borrowing costs in Canada's main source of investment capital.

The tax, proposed about 18 months ago, will be retroactive to July 1, 1963, and increases the borrowing cost for foreigners by about one per cent. It applies only to existing Canadian stocks and bonds issued or held in the U.S.

It expires Dec. 31, 1965, but could be extended.

The U.S. administration has suggested that the purpose of the tax has been substantially achieved even before the bill becomes law, curbing demand for United States capital and easing the resultant strain on the U.S. balance-of-payments problem. Most foreign borrowers, including Canadians, have adopted a wait-and-see attitude pending final approval.

Student Union Seminar

Four Going to Laval

Four University of Victoria students will be among 140 from across Canada at the seventh annual Seminar of the Canadian Union of Students, Aug. 30 to Sept. 5 at Laval University, Quebec.

They are Rollie Cooch, fifth-year education; Les Underwood, co-ordinators.

The students, representing the 41 member institutions of the union, will investigate the topic, A New Concept of Confederation. Each participant had to submit an essay to the seminar's co-ordinators.

Decide Season's Best Game On Kapp to Fleming 'Bomb'

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions had to use "The Bomb" last night at Empire Stadium to stop Saskatchewan's aroused Roughriders in a spectacular Western Football Conference game played before the second largest crowd in conference history—35,618 worried but enthralled fans.

Trailing 14-16 with less than seven minutes left and being badly outplayed, the Lions suddenly pulled out their most fearsome weapon on a second and 10 situation on their own 35-yard line.

Joe Kapp went back and threw the ball long with Willie Fleming speeding down field. Defender Bob Place appeared ready to intercept when Fleming suddenly cut back, stole the ball and then took off for the last 40 yards of a 75-yard scoring play.

No one, of course, could get close.

Lions scored again in the last minute after taking over on downs only one yard out for the final 27-16 count but it was "The Bomb" which broke up the season's most thrilling game.

Rookie fullback Bob Swift, battering his way for 78 tough yards, scored the other three B.C. touchdowns with Pete Kempf kicking three converts.

For Saskatchewan, halfbacks Ed Buchanan and Bob Good scored touchdowns with Jerry James kicking a 23-yard field goal and a convert.

It was a hard-fought, bitter struggle, replete with penalties and injured players, which saw two players tossed out in the fourth quarter—Buchanan for a joust with Walt Blidick and defensive end Dick Fouts of the Lions for protesting too strenuously when called for clipping.

LIONS TAKE OVER

James' field goal opened the scoring but the Lions, using Swift as their battering ram and using the pass and Fleming to keep the Riders worried made touchdown marches of 75 and 63 yards for two converted touchdowns and a 14-3 half-time lead.

But what looked like an easy win suddenly came as the Lions faced a new club in a second half which provided about all the excitement, particularly in the fourth quarter, anyone could stand.

FUMBLE STARTS IT

On the first play after the kickoff, Kapp was hit hard and Riders took possession on the ensuing fumble only 27 yards out. They made it on five plays as Lancaster took off from the 14-yard line for five yards, then lateraled to Buchanan for the score.

James was wide with the convert and it was 9-14 — and the Riders were firmly in the saddle.

They got restarted, and set up an amazing occurrence of events, when starry Dick Schnell intercepted a pass and ran it to his own 44.

REED BRILLIANT

George Reed, a pile-driving runner, went 57 yards in five successive carries to get within eight yards but the Lions took over on downs just as the third quarter ended.

They got something started but it ended when Ron Morris fumbled and Bill Clarke recovered on the B.C. 26.

Riders got within 10 yards, then Ron Lancaster was thrown for a big loss, back to the 35-yard line.

Neal Beaumont took the kickoff to the 35-yard line. Kapp threw an incomplete pass, then hit Fleming.

The desperate Riders were stopped as Bill Munsey made an interception, got the ball back with two minutes left. Lancaster completed one pass to get to his 35. Three plays later, with Tom Hinton and Emery Barnes breaking through to spill him for 21 and 13-yard losses, he was on the one.

Swift boomed through on the first play.

How do you make an extra-dry martini? That may seem an extraordinary question with which to start a column on golf.

Yet the answer (seven parts gin, one part dry vermouth, stirred and strained meticulously, with a pearl onion added) is something which should be taught at all schools by the age of 14.

Not to encourage them to drink but simply to learn there is only one way to do things—the right way.

This strange train of thought began passing through my mind since reading the most wonderful of all the tributes paid to the late Ian Fleming, golfer and creator of that magnificent cad, James Bond.

Fleming, a fine amateur golfer himself, died last week and it was little wonder that Henry Longhurst, finest of all living golf-writers, should have written an essay about him which thousands will treasure.

Neither was it surprising that Longhurst should have referred to the famous Bond vs. Goldfinger golf match which was just a little more exciting to me than winning the British Open Championship in 1951.

Ian Fleming wrote it superbly. But I must take issue with Longhurst who, in his appraisal of it, sides with Fleming in a quite unwarranted attack on those "who try to look smart on the golf course."

"Who, indeed," he wrote, "has not seen replicas of the ghastly Goldfinger with everything exactly right?"

"The brilliantly polished, almost orange shoes; the plus-four suit so well cut, the plus-fours themselves pressed down the sides; the heather mixture stockings with the green garter tabs; and the huge black bag full of American clubs, each in its little cardboard tube, the wooden clubs hooded with leather covers bearing the name of . . . etc., etc."

The Shoe Fitted

My hair stood on end, almost, as I read it. Never before have I read such an adequate description of myself.

So this is what Ian Fleming thought of me after we had met at a pro-amateur tournament! And this is what Longhurst thinks of me now!

I notice that Longhurst does not recall for us what James Bond was wearing on that particular occasion. A pity, that, because just as Bond liked his martini extra-dry (seven, not six-and-a-half parts gin and one, not one-and-a-half parts dry vermouth) he was a meticulous dresser for every single occasion.

In fact, I believe their mutual assault on Goldfinger's sartorial efforts could be applied to practically every successful professional golfer of the past decade.

My own choice of colors (magenta socks with sky-blue plus-tens and a primrose yellow shirt for example, may be a little unusual. But in common with Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Henry Cotton, Peter Thomson and about a hundred others, I would not feel fully prepared for an important round if everything were not immaculately pressed, cleaned and polished.

Will Never Give It Up

Never, ever, shall I give up this fight for smartness on the golf course. Not even in memory of my author-hero, Ian Fleming. Not even to court a kind word from my golf-entire hero, Henry Longhurst.

May I commend that advice to you, even if you are the lowliest public-course hacker ever to miss every single fairway over 12 holes.

Remember this. Goldfinger could never have been born a natural golfer. His background, his environment, his nefarious profession saw to that. Yet, in that classic fictional match, he took the superman James Bond to the eighteenth before being beaten.

True, he indulged in cheating on the seventeenth, but—had it not been for his sartorial turn-out—he would certainly have gone down 6 and 5 long before he got there.

No, there is no substitute for meticulous preparation for a game of golf. The right clothes, the equipment in perfect order, all give a glow of mental wellbeing. I'm sure they help you concentrate.

For once, long live the conformists!

Record 94 for Games South Africa Barred

LAUSANNE — The International Olympics Committee has officially announced that South Africa has been barred from the 18th Olympic Games in Tokyo because it has refused to disassociate itself from racial segregation in sports.

The move followed repeated appeals by the committee to South Africa to get rid of discrimination in sports or be banned from the Olympics in October.

South Africa replied to the latest appeal last week by saying it could not comply with the segregation-free conditions set by the IOC.

JUST MAKE IT

Despite South Africa's ouster, however, this year's games have drawn a record entry. Greece, the mother of the Olympics, beat the registration deadline by minutes Monday to become the 83rd nation, and Costa Rica filed an application Tuesday.

Costa Rica is expected to be accepted to bring the total entrants to 94, 10 more than competed in the 1960 games in Rome.

Roger Enters Fourth Round

OTTAWA—Victoria's Roger Skilling continued in his winning ways in the under-14 division at the Canadian Open junior tennis championships here yesterday as he won his second and third round matches.

Skilling dropped his first set in under-14 competition in his second round match with Harold Solomon of Silver Springs, Md. But the Victorian still won the match, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

Skilling had less trouble in his third round contest as he disposed of Mark Landman of Hamtramck, Mich., 6-3, 6-0.

Politics, however, have begun to play their inevitable part in the games. North Korea has protested to the IOC at not being permitted to use its political title of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. South Korea, entering a separate team, has accepted its geographic designation.

Indonesia, too, is the centre of a small storm resulting from political considerations. It submitted entries for four events for which it is ineligible.

REASONS WHY

Indonesia is ineligible for swimming since it withdrew from the International Swimming Federation last year after it was suspended by the IOC for barring Israel and Nationalist China from the Asian Games in 1962.

And it did not participate in the regional elimination rounds in field hockey, basketball and water polo and thus is ineligible.

Nothing to Do with Baseball

Yankee Purchase Just News Shakeup

By AET BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON (PNS) — When the Columbia Broadcasting System announced it had purchased the New York Yankees baseball team, many people were curious as to why CBS had done it. We can now reveal that the acquisition of the Yankees had nothing to do with baseball, but was part of the network's shakeup of the news department.

Rumor has it that Yogi Berra will be the new anchor man at the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City and that CBS will use Yankee players on the floor to report the convention.

Walter Cronkite, Eric Sevareid, Roger Mudd, and Martin Agronsky will be suited up and sent out to play the Kansas City A's during that week. CBS feels it has to have a new image and the Yankees are associated with winners.

This is how it may go in Atlantic City next week.

"Good evening, ladies and gentlemen, this is Yogi Berra speaking to you from Atlantic City where the Democrats are opening their all-important series against the Republicans. Let's go down to the floor now and hear a word from Mickey Mantle."

"Well, Yogi, this is quite a ball game down here, as you can see. Bobby Kennedy has been struck out by Lyndon Johnson, the playing manager, and may be traded to New York before the fall. Johnson has walked the rest of his cabinet and no one has been able to get a hit off him yet."

"Thanks, Mickey. Now let's pick up Roger Maris and see what he has to report."

"Yogi, my information down here is that Johnson is playing this one close to his vest. He has Hubert Humphrey, Gene McCarthy, and Mike Mansfield all warming up in the bullpen, but he hasn't indicated whom he'll use against the Republicans. The Democrats have been complaining that the Republicans have been hitting a lot of fouls lately and Johnson would like to find someone who can make their sluggers pop up."

"Who's to first now, Roger?"

"Nobody knows, Yogi. At the moment the Democratic team seems to be pretty disorganized."

"Thanks, Roger. Now let's go over to Elston Howard, who has been covering right field for CBS."

"Well, Yogi, there still seems to be a question of who will play for Mississippi. There are two rosters and only one will be allowed on the field. The regular Mississippi players insist they should be in the game, but an insurgent group say the regular Mississippi team wants to throw the game to the Republicans. There could be quite a fracas over this one."

"Thanks, Elston. Now let's hear a word from our sponsor."

The commercial shows Roger Mudd and Bob Trout in a CBS locker room. Mudd puts some hair oil on and Trout says to him, "Say, Roger, are you still using that greasy kid stuff on your hair?"

"Now back to Convention Hall. This is Yogi Berra, bringing you the latest on the Democratic National Convention."

"We've just had a bulletin that Bobby Kennedy says he wants to play for the Senators if Bob Wagner will have him. There have been some complaints that Kennedy has never played in the New York league and is not eligible for a position. But his fans say he should be able to play anywhere he wants to."

"Here comes Lyndon Johnson on the field. He seems to be talking to the newsmen. Let's pick him up on the mike."

"Ah feel Ah got a great team and Ah'm for everybody in this league as long as they play ball with me."

"Ah feel Ah got a great team and Ah'm for everybody in this league as long as they play ball with me."

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

The doll may have batted her eyes demurely, but if she did, the dark glasses concealed it. "I haven't told anybody this," she said, "but I did do a strip act for a month or so."

"It was a nice act," she said, "all dancing and I didn't take off too much. The idea was, I'd be coming home from a party and getting ready for bed, you know? Oh, it was a cute act."

Now the doll gallops race horses in the morning at Monmouth Park and ponies them to the post in the afternoon, and a guy can't help feeling there's something out of joint here. Nothing wrong with galloping horses, to be sure, but when a doll with Pat Marshall's equipment turns in her G-string for jodhpurs, things are definitely moving in the wrong direction. Maybe Goldwater's right and we ought to turn the clock back.

This was in the late morning after Pat's chores around the stable area. She sat in the track's publicity office tamping a cigarette in an ashtray on a desk. She had form-fitting black slacks and a fresh cotton blouse and her lustrous black hair reached her shoulders in a long bob.

Night and Day

"I grew up in Washington," she said, "Silver Springs, Md., and I always had a horse. I showed horses and rode, did some professional riding in shows. When I was a senior in high school I started going out, got to know some of the clubs in Washington."

"A girl friend and I got a job dancing in a club, just a small act to fill in between shows. We did all the modern dances and then I learned all the Latin-American dances. I guess I've forgot half of 'em now."

"Well, I worked around and then a choreographer put a show together for a troupe of us. Julie Gibson was the star—you know Julie, the stripper? I guess she's right up there behind Blaze Starr, makes $1,500 a week."

"I suppose the biggest name club I worked was the Latin Quarter in New York. When I could get a booking in Washington, I'd take less money so I could live at home. I worked nights and rode in the daytime."

Art's Loss

"Julie was talking about retiring, though I don't know why because she's not old and she's gorgeous. Old? Look at Ann Corio, for heaven's sake. My agent told me the thing to do was go on my own as a stripper."

"My parents didn't like it. My father hollered. But we started working on this strip act I was telling you about, just doing spots to polish it. My agent booked me into the Moulin Rouge in San Francisco, know the club? No? Well, I was going to open there and then work Mexico City and he said if I went over he could look me in as Vegas."

"About a month before I was supposed to go West my mother said, 'You don't really want to do this. Why don't you do what you want? You love horses.' So I started to train my horse to work as a pony. My manager was fit to be tied. Pat worked the Maryland-Delaware-Jersey circuit last year and Florida in the winter. She's a freelance and hires out to any trainer who wants a horse ponied in a morning work or galloped without the pony or ponied to the paddock for a race. There are only two pony girls at Monmouth; if stable areas aren't bastions of anti-feminism, they're the next thing to it."

For That Kind of Money

"Discrimination isn't the word," Pat said. "It's rough. But I must say most everybody around here has been pretty decent."

"I do all right. You get $10 for ponying a horse to the post in the afternoon. In New York and Florida it's $3 to pony a horse in the morning and $3 to gallop a horse. Other places it's $2. I kind of make my own price. If I gallop two horses for a big stable, I'll charge $4; if it's a little guy with only a couple of horses I might make it $3."

"On the average I probably gallop two and pony two in the morning, and I'll get to take about one-and-a-half to the post."

"Have you considered trying for a trainer's licence?"

"That's what I want, but what I'd like best of all is to ride race."

"What do you weigh?"

"A hundred twenty-five, but I could make the weight. I'd look like hell, but geez, for that kind of money."

Allen Has Chance For Baseball Coup

NEW YORK (AP)—Ritchie Allen, leading a charge that is moving Philadelphia Phillies to their first National League pennant in 14 years, appears to have a good chance to become the first major leaguer to win the rookie and most valuable player awards in one season.

Although teammate Johnny Callison, the clutch-hitting outfielder, has been more frequently mentioned as Philadelphia's top candidate for the MVP honors, Allen's credentials are even more impressive.

The two are tied for the club lead in home runs with 29 and while Callison has batted in 70 runs to Allen's 61, the young third-baseman is outpacing his teammate by about 35 points. Allen's average after Tuesday night's game was .310, ninth best in the league.

ROLD BEO LEADS

Meanwhile, Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh and rookie Tony Oliva of Minnesota Twins in the American League, appear heading for their league's batting championships.

Clemente has a 16-point lead and is being pursued by two Chicago Cubs—Billy Williams, batting .328, and Ron Santo, at .325.

Oliva boosted his average to .338, second in the major leagues only to Clemente's .344, and has a 25-point margin over the gimp-legged Mickey Mantle, who is seeing only sporadic service under a big handicap.

Season Now Over For Independents

Independents won't have to worry about baseball in the Senior Amateur League until next season, thanks to Greaves' Movers.

Independents dropped their second straight game, 5-2, at Royal Athletic Park last night in the best-of-three series against Greaves.

Greaves now leave for Courtenay on Sunday to play a best-of-three final for the second Island berth in the provincial championships to be held here Sept. 4-7.

Greaves face the up-Island squad at 2 p.m. in the opener and again at 6 p.m. If a third game is necessary it will be held here Aug. 30.

FOUR-RUN BURST
Greaves scored four runs in the fifth inning to take the lead. Pitcher Des Moseley brought in two runs on a double, Joe Patterson scored one with a sacrifice fly and George Brice came home on an error.

Gary Tuttle scored on Patterson's single in the next inning to make the score 5-0 to Greaves.

Independents scored their only run in the eighth inning when Norm Curran belted a home run bringing in Rick Blake. It was only the second, and last, hit off Moseley.

Independents 000 000 000-2 3
Greaves 000 000 000-5 7
Steve Bishop, Jim Moody (4), Moody and Bishop (3); Des Moseley and Jay Randall.

ROME (AP)—A meeting of top agriculture experts in Africa will be held in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, Sept. 3-15 to discuss ways to improve the continent's food and agriculture situation, the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) announced.

Five from B.C. Left In Canadian Tourney

SASKATOON—Defending champion Nick Weslock led the way into the second round of match play for the Canadian amateur golf championship on Wednesday by routing Bob Eadale of Edmonton, 7 and 6, in a day in which 32 matches produced nothing in the way of a major upset.

All those, and there are quite a number, who rate a chance to dethrone Weslock, moved along into the second round, which will be played Thursday morning and will be followed by the third round in the afternoon.

Among the 32 survivors are five of the 10 British Columbia players, including the entire Willingdon Cup team, who made it in the 36-hole qualifying round.

ISLANDERS LOSE

Among those eliminated were Vancouver Island youngsters Ron Hume of Nanaimo and Noel Pumfrey of Victoria.

Hume lost to Henry Setlakwe of Thetford Mines, a member of the Quebec cup team, 1 down, while Pumfrey was beaten, 4 and 3, by Keith Rever of Regina.

Going into the second round along with team-players Bob Kidd, Bert Ticehurst, Johnny Johnston and John Russell, was Vancouver youngster Terry Campbell. However, Campbell is drawn against Johnston in the second round.

Ed Ross and Ron Folk of Saskatoon, who shared medal honors, both won. And so did such outstanding challengers as Bob Wylie, Doug Silverberg, and Keith Alexander of Calgary, and Gary Cowan of Kitchener.

Silverberg was one of the hottest players Wednesday, being three under par figures when he clipped Rich Palumbus of Englewood, Colo., 2 and 1. Fifteen of the 17 holes played were halved with Silverberg winning the second and 12th for his margin.

Saskatchewan and Alberta have six players left in the final 32, Ontario and B.C. five each, Manitoba and Quebec two each and Nova Scotia one. The other five are from the United States, which had seven qualifiers.

Yesterday's results:

Evie Rye, Dartmouth, N.S., defeated Bob Mitchell, Vancouver, 4 and 3.
Gary Cowan, Kitchener, Ont., defeated Bill Fothergill, Saskatoon, 7 and 5.
John Kilburn, Edmonton, defeated W. Albert Fawcett, Saskatoon, 3 and 4.

Swim Theory Tested

VANCOUVER—The Canadian Olympic swimming trials, last stepping stone for Olympic hopefuls, will be held at Vancouver's Empire pool Sept. 1-5 and the times made there will either confirm or prove as false the speculation of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association.

Swimming and diving competitions will be allotted 14 positions on the 1964 Canadian Olympic team and with the new qualifying rules, the 1964 team could turn out to be the best swim team since Canada's Olympic beginnings.

The rules were designed by the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association to squeeze the best possible performance from the small-in-numbers team.

This year's policy designates that being the fastest in Canada in any specific event will not necessarily qualify a swimmer for the Olympic Games.

The minimum time for qualification is a time no more than a tenth more than the world record in that event—for example, the world record for the 100-metre butterfly is 1:05.1 minutes to make the Canadian time for Olympic qualification no more than 1:09.7.

A unique pre-Olympic program has also been set up in Vancouver to add strength to the team through the coaching and training of possible competitors in a swimming clinic. It was set up by the B.C. section of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association on June 22 under the direction of three coaches.

Also adding speculation of a possible good showing at the Olympic Games by the swim team is Canada's recent successes in international competition. At the British Empire and Commonwealth Games held in Perth, Australia in 1962 the swimming team made up 16% of the total Canadian team and won 40% of all medals brought home by Canadians.

New Record For Baseball Almost Sure

CINCINNATI (AP)—The National League is headed for a third consecutive season attendance record, league headquarters has announced.

With the baseball season a little more than two-thirds completed, 9,054,304 paid admissions have been recorded at the 10 league parks.

At its present pace during the remaining seven weeks of the season, the 12,000,000 attendance mark will be reached for the first time in major league history, the league said.

Through games of last Sunday, the league showed a gain of $11,908 over the same period in 1963 when the league set an attendance record of 11,382,277 paid admissions.

Anglers' Picnic
The Chinook Club will hold its annual members' picnic Sunday, Aug. 23 at Shore Acres Marina at Mill Bay. A good sports program has been arranged.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE
The St. Louis College bantam Canadian football team will hold its first practice at the college Friday at 1 p.m.

Success Keeps Phone Ringing

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gene Mauch flinches every time the telephone rings because he has a hunch what the caller wants. World series tickets.

That's part of the price a manager pays for getting into the world series and even though the Philadelphia Phillies haven't quite made it yet, most of Mauch's callers are perfectly willing to overlook that little detail.

EARLY TIP-OFF
"I can tell what's on their minds just by the way they say 'hello,'" revealed the youthful Philadelphia skipper, who will be taking part in his first world series — when and if.

Should Mauch need any help in the ticket request department, he could get plenty from Casey Stengel.

"I didn't mind so much when people used to call me up for series tickets," says Casey. "The thing that really burned me was when they asked me to deliver the tickets personally on the day of the first game."

ONE REGRET
There's one particular ticket Mauch would love to deliver personally, but unfortunately he can't.

That would be for his father, George, who died in 1952 and never had the opportunity to see his son manage anywhere.

"If we get into the world series, my biggest regret will be the fact that my father won't be there to see it," says Mauch.

"Here was a man who moved his family from Kansas all the way to California just so that his son could play baseball the year around," Mauch went on.

The elder Mauch was the kind of man who didn't know how to quit, much like his son.

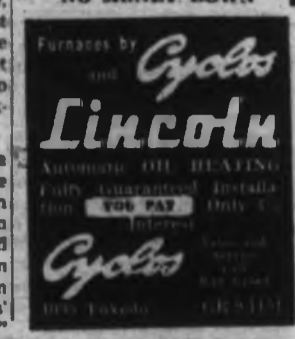

"He owned three bakeries in Kansas and they all went broke in the crash of 1929," explained the Phillies' manager. "After he moved the family to the west coast, he went into the automobile business and in a short time he had three of the biggest dealerships in California."

But it was his son's baseball career that interested him primarily.

"I was 17 when the Dodgers signed me and he came to Brooklyn with me to see Branch Rickey," Mauch recalled. "Since I was under age, my father signed my first contract. The Dodgers sent me to Durham of the Piedmont League, from where I went to Montreal and then to Brooklyn."

"My father saw me play a lot of times. I remember one time he came all the way from Los Angeles to see me play in Brooklyn. He didn't even tell me he was coming. I darn near fell over when I saw him waiting for me at the players' entrance after the ball game."

Silent Sub-Station

Hydro Sub-Station

Landmark Abandoned

B.C. Hydro has abandoned a building that has been a Victoria landmark since 1929. The building is the old Bay Street sub-station between Douglas and Government, whose transformers and high-tension wires have been a familiar sight for passers-by for nearly two generations.

The sub-station supplied power for the entire downtown area, but the city's needs have outgrown it and last month it was closed. The city now gets its power from the Horsey sub-station on Topaz Avenue — a site that offers room for the expansion that B.C. Hydro anticipates to supply the city's underground power network.

Only one large transformer remains at the Bay Street sub-station, and it is destined for a North Vancouver site. The rest of the equipment has been dismantled, and the building is temporarily being utilized for storage.

A spokesman for the power company indicated the property would probably be put up for sale, although it is not yet officially on the market.

The Horsey sub-station went into operation in 1959.

British Claim $33,000,000

LONDON (Reuters) — The Soviet Union and Britain will hold talks in London this fall on British and Russian claims arising from property confiscated during and after the Second World War. British claims are estimated at about $33,000,000.

COMING OF AGE

With Sally Hamilton

A recent news story told of a woman who lay for five days after tumbling down a flight of stairs. Eventually a neighbor who missed seeing her in church broke into her house. She was wedged at the bottom of the stairs with her shoulders caught and her legs crossed beneath her — one of them fractured. She was taken to hospital in a serious condition.

What's the toughest part of living alone?

I put this question to a neighbor who seems to manage quite happily and she replied promptly, "Boredom! And next to that comes eating—that is, eating the right kind of meals."

Surely everyone who lives alone thinks, too, of the hazards of accident or illness, even though few seem ready to talk about it.

You want to be independent. But with it you want security and contentment. To live alone successfully requires planning.

To feel secure, you should admit, at least to yourself, what could go wrong. Then think what you can do to prevent it. And plan what action to take if trouble strikes.

To be content, you need to see people and have interesting things to do. You need a healthy regime of well-planned eating.

Look around you. What might cause a fall? Falls are the most common cause of home accidents, and the most serious ones happen to older folks. You don't have to fall very far to be hurt.

One woman, about to leave the house, went to the kitchen to take a last look at her stove. As she turned around, her foot slipped on a wet spot. She fell, breaking her wrist.

Spills of water or fat should be wiped up at once. A highly polished floor looks nice but can be dangerous. If any wax is used, it should be the slip-proof type. Apply it thinly and buff well. Anchor scatter rugs or tack them down. Every staircase, inside or out, needs a handrail. Install and use them. Even when climbing a few steps, a knee can give way without warning.

Don't leave anything on the stairs ready to carry up or down. Be sure stairs and hallways are well-lighted.

Do you have a non-slip mat in your bathtub? And a grab-rail? A mat on the bathroom floor that won't slip.

If you were taken ill, who would you call? While you're feeling good, make yourself a visitor.

known to a doctor and keep his number right by the phone. Suppose something happened that prevented your reaching a phone. What then?

One pensioner turns on a light in the window each morning for his neighbor to see on his way to work. If that light's not on, the neighbor steps in to see what, if anything, has gone wrong.

A mother has her daughter phone her each morning. Another woman, without a phone, has a bell connected with a neighbor's apartment. They have arranged two signals. The one a call for help. The other an "All's well!" This latter signal is given every day at nine a.m.

There's nothing morbid about any of this. It just makes good sense.

From childhood to old age, we need companionship. A youngster of four will say, "What shall I do now? Robert's gone home!" An older of seventy-four, often just sits and broods.

Not so Leonard B. He was a self-employed businessman and mayor of a small town who lives alone. He had many friends and he was always busy. Then one autumn he retired.

For a while friends stopped at his house during the day but gradually he had fewer interruptions. Eventually he began missing himself and no body like him any more?

Leonard had always been a man of action. Now he pulled himself to gether. He cancelled the home delivery of his morning paper and, rain or shine, he walked every morning some four blocks to the store for it.

When someone did call or phone, he would invite them in for morning coffee or for afternoon tea. But each visit didn't last long. So he took a cook book from the shelf and worked out one good company meal that he could get ready himself. That brought visitors in for a whole evening — and invitations out!

The Red Cross centre had been one of his interests while he was mayor. He called on the workers there. "Friendly visiting" was a big need, he discovered, and he enrolled for a Red Cross, one-day, training course. Now he's a full-fledged visitor.

With these new activities, plus a young Labrador puppy he's training, Leonard reports he no longer has time to be bored!

Don't wait, like the frog, for Providence to send a fly. Or

Car Charge Brings Jail

A sentence of five years for Donald Gray, 30, of Victoria, and a sentence of three years for Michael Coates, 21, of Vancouver, were imposed Wednesday morning in Colwood magistrate's court.

The men, who earlier had been found guilty of being in possession of a stolen car, stood handcuffed before Magistrate Harold Alder as they were sentenced.

Each has been guilty in the past, in a long record of police convictions, of escaping custody.

"You have made rather a mess of life to date," said the magistrate to Gray and Coates. In giving the lesser sentence to Coates, Magistrate Alder said, "There is a chance you may improve yourself in time."

To Gray, the magistrate said, "Your background suggests inability to settle down and obey the law."

Bail was set at $1,000 Wednesday afternoon in Saanich magistrate's court for Daniel Stanley Fletcher, 20, of the navy, on a charge of attempted rape and a charge of indecent assault. The charges are dated Aug. 18. The case was remanded without plea until Aug. 27.

A deaf-mute, Ronald Duchesne, received a one-day sentence for vagrancy.

Duchesne was reported begging from house to house in the Victoria region recently. When checked by police he said through an interpreter that he did not realize begging was illegal. The accused drove a luxury late-model car.

A pre-sentence report was cited by Magistrate Ostler which indicated the handicapped man was equipped to be a useful citizen.

Also in Victoria magistrate's court, Edward Smith, 1475 May, was sentenced to three months for theft under $30. He had stolen $19 worth of socks from a store.

Peter Nordin received a fine of $300 and suspension of licence for impaired driving.

Graphics Show Is Tops

By INA D. D. UNTHOFF

Winnipeg Artists Here

Two graphic artists from Winnipeg, Winston Leathers and John Esler are showing a collection of top-ranking graphics at Ego Interiors, 1028 Fort Street.

Graduates of the University of Manitoba, they are now teachers of considerable experience, though still in their early 30s.

The work is virile, imaginative and concerned with experiment and exploration within the terms of the etching medium.

It possesses a built-up richness, almost a feeling of collage in the various textures; but there is always a sense of discipline shown. Concern with freedom of expression is never permitted to stifle the graphic element of the print.

Burma Troops Kill 23 Rebels

RANGOON (AP) — The Burmese government announced Monday its troops killed 23 rebel guerrillas in six clashes during the weekend. Bodies of four women slain by the rebels were recovered. Two soldiers were reported killed in the skirmishes, part of a 15-year-old war against Communist insurgents and Communist-influenced jungle tribes.

technique is an integral part of the vision of each artist.

This is a unique show that should attract the most knowledgeable or fastidious art lover.

With confidence, providing balance of mass and movement in each composition while the lover.

I was interested in their use of tinfoil pressed into the basic grounding wax which protects the copper or zinc from the acid bath.

When the plate has been bitten and printed, this produces a range of group that would not otherwise be possible in one printing.

Various textures can be produced by off-set moulds, giving the built-up collage-like effect of the most handsome of the etchings.

But, more aesthetically beautiful are the embossed prints, pure white, relying on the low-relief modelling of the composition within the space, or the sinking of some of the areas by pressure of the printing press, a process in reverse of embossing, for their impact.

Two that I have in mind are Serene Countenance and Sand of the Shore, recently bought for the Permanent Collection of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Auction Planned

Police will seek authority from city council Friday to sell 30 bicycles at auction.

In a letter to council Chief J. F. Gregory pointed out that the bicycles, along with many other unclaimed items recovered by police, had been held well beyond the time limit required by statute before disposal.

He added that it would be impractical to move them to the new quarters in the Begg Block which the police will occupy this fall, and wanted them out of the way.

Giant angel of timberland skies gets coat of paint before joining forest air force.

Water Bomber Fleet Still Growing

Almost ready to undergo flight tests, a monster Martin Mars flying boat is now getting its coat of red-and-white paint at Patricia Bay Airport.

It will be the third former transport and freight plane converted for use as a water bomber.

A fourth Mars stands unconverted at the airport.

Powered by four Wright Cyclone engines, the bomber will scoop up water at 50 to 60 knots. It takes just 25 seconds for the 6,000-gallon tanks to fill.

Supervising the overhaul of the 200-foot wingspan, 120-foot-long mammoth of the air, is Nels Christensen, chief engineer with Forest Industries Flying Tankers.

Mr. Christensen is also flight engineer when the bombers go into action, dumping their loads on burning forest areas.

At one time this particular aircraft was used to fly more than 300 men into San Diego.

Mini-Metro

In-Camera Sessions Deplored

By A. H. MURPHY

Five out of nine area representatives who will attend the first provincially-sponsored mini-metro meeting today have protested the fact that it will be closed to the public.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Wednesday that the first session, designed to fashion mini-metro legislation, would be held "in-camera."

He also said it was likely meetings would continue to be closed until members of the legislature had a chance to see the type of legislation delegates would propose.

One out of the nine delegates said he understood the reasons for a closed meeting, two were non-committal and one could not be reached for comment.

The five who were against the "in-camera" meeting saw no reason why the initial and all subsequent meetings designed to explore mini-metro should not be open.

"I see no reason why this meeting should be closed," said Reeve Allan Cox, of Oak Bay. "After all there is nothing mystifying or magical to be discussed. In view of the fact that the minister has made good use of the press and public platform to get his ideas of mini-metro across, I think it should be open."

Four others who will attend the meeting and who were against a closed session were: William Reader, elected from Colwood; R. H. Willing, Langford; K. W. Rainey, Metcheson; and A. E. Beasley, View Royal.

Some Members Agree

Reeve A. C. Wurtels, who will represent Esquimalt, said that because it is a preliminary meeting and delegates do not even know what was on the agenda, it is probably better closed.

"Well, it's the provincial government's meeting so I suppose they're calling the rules," said Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson.

North Saanich representative J. B. Cumming was also non-committal.

"I don't know just what is intended at this meeting," he said, "and until I do know I can hardly comment on whether or not it should be private."

Confirming that today's meeting would be closed, Mr. Campbell emphasized that it would be of an exploratory nature.

Working People Restricted

"It's pretty obvious," he said, "that this will prevent a lot of working people from attending. I'm going to bring this matter and the issue of closed meetings up on Thursday."

From Quenel, where he is attending a fire chiefs' convention, Mr. Beasley said:

"What are they up to anyway? I can't see appointing people to a public board and then holding closed meetings. Of course this meeting should be open to the public."

"I was going to the meeting today under the impression that things were in the formative stage, but that's no reason why it should be closed," said K. J. Rainey, elected Metcheson delegate.

"I intended and still intend to let people out my way know what is going on."

Adamantly opposed to afternoon meetings of the study group, composed of mayors, Reeves and elected representatives from the unorganized areas, was William Reader, of Colwood.

"I made it quite clear at the meeting in Belmont that I would pull for evening meetings so that anyone could attend," he said. "These afternoon sessions absolutely exclude working people."

Six MLAs have been invited to attend today's meeting. They are Works Minister W. N. Chant, Waldo Stillings and J. Donald Smith, of Victoria; Alan Macfarlane, Oak Bay; John Tisdale, Saanich; and Herbert Bruch, Esquimalt.

Acute Appendicitis

Ship Makes Mercy Run

The Esquimalt-based ocean escort HMCS St. Therese left the fourth Canadian escort squadron Wednesday to return to San Francisco with a cadet suffering from acute appendicitis.

Admitted to U.S. Navy Hospital, Treasure Island, at 9 p.m. Wednesday, was Naval Officer Cadet K. A. Burrowman of Pointe Claire, Que., a member of the Regular Officer Training Plan. No bulletins were issued on his condition.

The seven ships of the squadron had left San Francisco earlier after disembarking 12 survivors of the tug Sea Wolf which burned and sank Saturday in mid-Pacific.

The destroyer-escort HMCS St. Catharines, en route from Halifax to join Pacific Command, made an unscheduled stop at Acapulco, Mexico, Tuesday, to disembark OS Robert Moyes, 19, of Vancouver, who was also suffering from appendicitis. Late reports indicate his condition is good and that, upon release from hospital, he will be flown back to Esquimalt.

ARRIVES FRIDAY
HMCS Grise detached from the squadron and will arrive at HMC Dockyard at 9 a.m. Friday.

The ocean escorts Beacon Hill, Antigonish, Sussexvale, New Glasgow, Jonquiere and Stettler are due back at 11:30 a.m. Friday. No arrival time for the St. Therese has been given.

Dependents of returning sailors will not be admitted to HMC Dockyard until 11 a.m. Friday.

Acceptable Medicare Aim of Drive

Victoria doctors decided Tuesday to urge the B.C. Medical Association to campaign for an acceptable medicare scheme.

A resolution favoring such a move was adopted by a general meeting of about 100 Victoria doctors, which also recommended that the association utilize better public relations to acquaint the general public with the doctors' stand on the issue.

Guides Given Naval Tour

Forty Girl Guides from the Greater Vancouver area visited the navy's Pacific Command Wednesday for one hour. Their tour included the B.C. Maritime Museum on Esquimalt Road.

Freighter Rescue Imminent

Victoria-based deep-sea tug Sedberry II should be able to carry out rescue operations for a disabled Greek freighter by 9 p.m. today, an Island Tug and Barge official said. The tug left Saturday but was delayed over the weekend when it ran into a west-easterly gale.

The freighter, Atlantic Sun, lost her propeller on the 48th parallel at the International Dateline.

Esquimalt To Skip Bus Probe

Esquimalt Council has decided not to participate in a Greater Victoria plan to have an outside firm investigate effects of a fare increase by the B.C. Hydro transit system.

In a letter to Mayor Wilson the council has asked that before any rate increases are authorized, arrangements be made for the municipalities to meet with provincial government representatives and discuss the matter.

UNANIMOUS VOTE

Council voted unanimously against the proposal by the special transit committee that the firm of Simpson & Curran be engaged as agents to act for the municipalities in hearings before the Public Utilities Commission.

Council asked that a letter be addressed to the premier or the provincial secretary referring to the proposed increase.

It suggested the letter should stress the effects an estimated 21 per cent decrease in passenger traffic would have on downtown business congestion and street parking.

Crowds Up Despite Weather

Steelheading on Cowichan Wins Film Festival Award

A film, Steelhead Fishing in the Cowichan River, was one of the award winners at the Victoria International Film Festival wound up its season with prize-giving ceremonies at the Empress Hotel Wednesday.

The film was made by Karl Spreitz and featured well-known guide and painter Ricky Cicimarra. Both are Victorians.

The 20-minute documentary depicts an actual fishing trip, and is noted for its authenticity. It won the British Columbia award, one of nine category prizes.

Officials hailed the success of the festival, pointing to an attendance of 25,000 — up 5,000 over last year — as evidence of the program's popularity.

Paul Courtice, director of the festival, said the attendance figure was achieved despite inclement weather.

"The rain almost ruined us," he said. "There's no telling how many people would have come to the showings if we had not been forced to reschedule so many of them."

Winners Spreitz, Cicimarra

As the awards were handed out, officials spoke of the vitality and cultural achievement of the festival.

Top prize went to France for its film titled Montagnes Magiques, and second prize was given to Canada for Fields of Sacrifice.

All awards were wooden plaques carved in the shape of salmon.

Britain won the special award of distinction for the quality of its entries.

Winners Spreitz, Cicimarra

Industry — Canada, Magic Molecule.

Employment Office Man Says:

School Dropouts a Tragedy

A plea to have students remain at school has been issued by George Bevis, manager of the Victoria National Employment office.

"It is a very tragic thing," he comments, "to see a young person who is capable of better things become dissatisfied and quit school to earn a laborer's wages."

"Many of them have every intention of going back to school after they have earned a stake, or bought the car they wanted, but very few of them ever do."

"Consequently they find themselves trapped in a level of employment with very little chance of breaking out."

He pointed out that "they can find work fairly readily while they have their youth and vigor, but even so they are in a group in school until he reaches his optimum level."

It is also a group that is hardest hit by automation.

Mr. Bevis suggests that parents and friends should join teachers in considering the potential of a student, and then do everything possible to keep him in school until he reaches his optimum level.

HMCS Margaree

VMD May Win $3,500,000 Job

It appeared likely Wednesday that the reconversion contract on the destroyer-escort HMCS Margaree would be awarded to Victoria Machinery Depot, but no official confirmation could be obtained.

The navy said no unclassified information was available and a VMD spokesman said the yard had no official information on any contract award.

AT DOCKYARD

The Margaree is still berthed at HMC Dockyard after a visit to the Seattle Sea Fair a few weeks ago.

The contract is expected to be worth $3,500,000 and would give work to 250 men for 14 months.

Victoria shipyard officials, union leaders and politicians early this year expressed grave fears that modernization of HMCS Skeena and Margaree would go to eastern shipyards.

A delegation from Victoria and Vancouver, including Mayor R. B. Wilson, Ald. A. W. Toomey and Chamber of Commerce president E. E. Pearlman, went to Ottawa to interview the prime minister on the question, but the contract for conversion of HMCS Skeena was subsequently awarded to an eastern yard.

TWO CITY BIDS

When tenders were called on HMCS Margaree only West Coast shipyards were invited to bid.

Yarrows Ltd. and VMD both submitted bids.

U.S. Ship Here

Aug. 27 to 31

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: We are middle-class people of modest means. My husband's take home pay is slightly under $118 a week. It is not easy to manage today on his salary. Fortunately we own our home free and clear, and the company provides a car or we couldn't make it.

The problem is that my husband insists on giving our 14-year-old son $10 a week to spend on anything he wants. This does not include clothing, school supplies or tickets to sports events.

I've told him this is not right, but he says, "Money gives people confidence. When I was a kid I was so ashamed of not having a nickel in my pocket I swore it would never happen to my son."

Last night I sat down with the boy, and asked him to tell me what he had done with his week's allowance. Almost all of it was spent treating friends to sodas, sundries, hamburger and movies. My husband says this is "generous." I say the boy is trying to buy popularity.

May I hear what you have to say? Could I be wrong?—MINORITY OF ONE.

Dear Minority: I hope you can get an outsider to talk to your husband before he ruins his son for life.

Teen-agers who are handed a large allowance just for breathing, grow up spoiled, lazy and with no motivation to achieve anything through work.

Your son is not making friends, he is supporting leeches. Please urge your husband to seek some professional help or he may wind up giving the boy money for the rest of his life.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 22 and the only girl in my crowd who is not married. I pretend I am fussy, but the truth is nobody has ever asked me—until Bennie.

Bennie works as a waiter in a cafe where I am assistant cashier. His 28, handsome and has been married twice but has no children. The big problem is that Bennie drinks too much and doesn't remember what he says.

The forthcoming marriage is announced between Miss Donna Mae Broad, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Broad of Medicine Hat, Alta., and Mr. John Barry Furbank, only son of Mrs. Furbank, 1687 Chandler Avenue and the late Mr. Clifford Furbank. The wedding will take place Friday, Sept. 4, at 7 p.m. in St. Patrick's Church, with Father M. J. McNamara officiating.—(Chevron Studio)

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Scott, 1217 Haultain Street, announce the forthcoming marriage of their elder daughter, Miss Nancy Rose Barrett, to Mr. Arthur Joseph Clark, only son of Mrs. Keith Gravelle of Prince George and the late Mr. Clark. The wedding will take place at St. John's Church on Sept. 4 at 7:15 p.m. with Canon George Biddle officiating.—(Campbell Studio)

AMY By Mace and Tippet

"Here comes that Bates kid with another of her recipes. YOU make it... I have a weak stomach!"

Always well coiffured, Monaco's beautiful Princess Grace had to resort to a table napkin to protect her hair style when it started to rain. The glittering social occasion was the Red Cross gala ball held in Monte Carlo's Sporting Club. As can be seen here, the napkin provided ample protection and was not unattractive. Pictured at the right is the lovely and famous French ballerina, Ludmilla Tchérina, also a guest at the gala. She made a striking entrance as she is pictured here. The ball was held to raise funds for the Red Cross in France.—(Fednews)

Parties for Lois Helander

Miss Lois Helander has been feted at many parties prior to her marriage next Saturday.

Fellow teachers and staff at Burnside School gathered in her honor at the Richmond Ave. home of Mrs. A. Oost. A wishing well contained gifts of linen. Carnation corsages were presented to the bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. H. Helander.

Invited guests included Mrs. D. Begg, Mrs. W. Abbott, Mrs. E. Oakley, Mrs. A. Mathews, Mrs. J. Watts, Mrs. C. Palmer, Mrs. T. White, Mrs. F. Ashby, Mrs. K. McCalloch, the Misses Yvette Darners and Pamela Elliott.

The Cowper Ave. home of Mrs. A. Lebrun was scene of a surprise shower with gifts being concealed under a pink and white umbrella. Pink roses were received by the honor guest and her mother received feathered corsages.

Mrs. R. C. Cleland presided at the refreshment table which was centred with a decorated bride's cake. Games were played and a scrapbook assembled, titled "The Life of the Bride and Broom."

Guests included Mrs. J. Armstrong, Mrs. G. Polson, Mrs. J. Jones, Mrs. S. Vantreight, Mrs. Fred Polson and Miss Cathy Cleland.

Mrs. G. W. Cadmore and her daughter, Mrs. A. F. Smith, gave a coffee party in the former's Viewmont Ave. home.

Gifts were in model "His" and "Her" coffee mugs. Pink carnations were presented to Miss Helander and an arrangement of the same flowers in a coffee mug was received by her mother. Miss Dianne Quayle assisted in serving refreshments.

Invited guests included the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. C. Laferle, Mrs. A. Laferle, Mrs. G. Vossburgh, Mrs. R. Cleland, Mrs. J. Armstrong, Mrs. B. Mackie, Mrs. R. Armstrong, Mrs. B. Berr, Mrs. J. Mr. and Mrs. C. Laferle of Campbell River, parents of the groom-elect, will entertain members of the wedding party at the Redwood Motel following the marriage rehearsal on Friday evening.

The forthcoming marriage is announced between Margerie Joan, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. W. Gaunt, 2554 Scott Street, and Mr. Walter Eddie Evanchiew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Evanchiew, Edmonton, Alta. The wedding will take place Friday, Sept. 4, at 7:30 p.m. in Metropolitan United Church.—(Campbell Studio)

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Caley Married in Centennial

Centennial United Church, decorated with pastel-toned gladiolus in white baskets, was setting for the marriage of Patricia Ann Salter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Salter, 3348 Wordsworth Street, and Mr. John (Chick) Douglas Caley, son of
Mr. and Mrs. B. Caley, 938
Wollaston Street.

Rev. M. Lees conducted the ceremony. Mrs. W. Fraser was soloist and Mrs. M. Wilmshurst was organist.

A full-skirted, floor-length gown of Chantilly lace over tulle slightly en train was worn by the bride. The fitted bodice, fashioned with lily-point sleeves, was highlighted with seed pearls at the scalloped neckline. Organza roses at the waistline created back interest. A crown of pearl hearts with crystal drops held a four-tier scalloped chapel-length bouffant veil.

Attendants wore floor-length, bell-skirted gowns of sparkling organsa over tulle in shades of aqua, pale pink, mauve, and ice blue. Their headpieces were heart-shaped pearl tiaras, and they carried white gladiolus and feathered carnations en tone.

Matron of honor was Mrs. B.
Orr, sister of the bride; bridesmaids, Mrs. B. Clayards, sister of the groom, and Mrs. B.
Leonard, and the bridesmaid,
Miss Anne McConnell.

Miss Kelly Orr, flower girl for her aunt, wore a floor-length pink nylon over tulle frock, accented with pink rosettes. On her head was a dainty crown of miniature pearl hearts and she carried a basket of roses and carnations in toning pink shades.

Mr. Robert Caley, brother of the groom, was best man, and guests were ushered by Mr.
Evan Mitchell, Mr. Warren Gordon and Mr. Richard Salter, brother of the bride.

At a reception in Club Soho the lace-covered head table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake decorated with pink and white roses and surrounded with pink tulle. Candelabra at each end of the table and arrangements of pastel-toned gladiolus completed decorations.

Mr. Fred Fillingier, Nanaimo, proposed the toast to his niece.
After a honeymoon on the Oregon coast and in the interior of British Columbia, Mr. and Mrs. Caley will live at 6077 Holland Road, Victoria. For travelling Mrs. Caley chose a white wool suit. Turquoise flowered hat with black velvet band, turquoise gloves, black patent shoes and purse, and a corsage of rapture roses enhanced the ensemble.

Shirley Pauline Pedersen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. her marriage to Mr. Maurice Ove Pedersen, 1085 Beverley Place, walked up the aisle of I. Dick, Bralorne, B.C. Grace Lutheran Church with her Dr. J. Bergbusch performed the double-ring ceremony and David Pedersen, brother of the bride, acted as acolyte.

Mr. C. Warren played the Processional from Handel's Water Music as the bride entered the church and Mendel-sohn's Wedding March as the bridal party left.

The fair-haired bride was regal in her gown of white satin, a full-length, straight-line sheath. The crescent neckline had a scalloped lace top and was trimmed with pearls. Her floor-length flowing veil of lace was attached to her shoulders with white satin bows and her shoulder-length veil was caught to a velvet head band with front bow. Pale green gladiolus, pink roses and fern were in her bou-quet.

Mrs. M. Krowchuck, matron of honor, and Miss Jane Bowley, bridesmaid, wore short bellskirted dresses of blush pink and tulle. Their headpieces featured three-quarter-length sleeves.
Their bridesmaids wore a pink rose and net and they carried pale green gladiolus and fern.

Miss Allyson Bray had a flower girl's dress of pale pink flocked nylon over blush pink satin with long skirt and sash of blush pink. Her head band was pale pink and she carried a Colonial bouquet of green gladiolus and pink roses.

Mr. Rodney A. Meyer was best man and Mr. Dave Ger-brant and Mr. Robert Williams showed guests to the pews.

A reception followed in the War Amps Memorial Hall, where Mr. M. Griffin acted as master of ceremonies and Mr.
H. Kjer proposed the bridal toast. The bride's table, decorated with shaded pink roses and pink tapers, was centred with a three-tiered white cake set in pleated pink tulle and sprinkled with pink roses.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Washington and the interior of B.C., the bride wore a white brocade Princess-style sheath dress, matching coat and pink and white accessories. A corsage of green gladiolus and pink roses was pinned to her coat.

The groom's parents and brothers, Harry and Alfred, came from Bralorne and the bride's aunt, Mrs. T. R. Iceland, came from Seattle for the ceremony. Mr. P. Burke of Comox was also a guest.

MONTREAL, August 28th - A modern approach to money management will make it much easier for you to live comfortably on your income. Under the BANK OF MONTREAL Family Finance Plan it is now possible to group all of your time-payment buying into one single comprehensive plan. Rather than worrying about separate commitments on the home... bills for school or college... the doctor and the dentist... unexpected emergencies... all of these can be taken care of in an orderly fashion with a single monthly payment on the B of M Family Finance Plan. Believe me, if you want to organize your household finances, it will pay you to look into this low-cost, life-insured approach to money management. You can do this at any branch of "My Bank".

LET ME TELL YOU A TRAVELLERS' SECRET... those 'in the know' prefer to visit Europe in September and October. Yes, this is the season when the Continent comes to life... when the Parisians are in Paris, the Romans are in Rome, and Europe is full of fun and festival. Fly BOAC to Europe - in the 'sophisticated season'... you can still save with BOAC 21-day Economy Excursions! Lowest jet fares ever! Only $299.00 Montreal to London round-trip, for example. Seats are filling fast... better book now! See your BOAC Travel Agent.

BEFORE YOU BARBECUE, it helps to tenderize meats by marinating them overnight. When you're wielding the tongs, it's a smart idea to have the WINDSOR SALT Softer 3-Pack of 3 shakers with you. One for adding this finer food flavoring to your cook, and 2 for the trays. Windsor Salt is the first choice of home-makers. Crystal-pure Windsor Salt is always free-running whether it's hot or damp... inside or out. For barbecue and picnics, get the Windsor Salt 3-Pack as well when you're buying the regular red-white-and-blue package.

Bold Styling Enlivens Ordinary Room: Ingenuity turned an ordinary room, with broken wall spaces, no architectural interest, into this dramatic setting for dining. A 16-inch-deep frame was built to enclose the draperies which hide a small window. Table-height shelves, built into the niche formed on each side, make ideal serving tables, or display some choice accessories, like these urns, chosen to complement the carved wooden chandelier. The unusual use of the dramatic wallpaper further sets off the room. The paper runs up the wall, and wraps around the corners to accent the niches. By analyzing a room's architectural faults first, you can often turn them into decorating assets—or at least minimize them in the total scheme. — (Better Homes and Gardens)

Man in the Kitchen

Rice Is Versatile

By BASIL FITZGERALD

Rice is one of the most versatile commodities available. It has many advantages in so much as it is easy to prepare, blends well with meats, vegetables, fruit and of course can be used in soups and puddings. Many people nowadays use it as a substitute for potatoes. The methods of preparation are many, dependent on the type of rice used, but even for plain boiled rice, there are one or two tips that add to the flavor and give that little extra touch that is so important. Here are some ideas:

1. When boiling rice add one or two tablespoons of butter to the water before you add the rice. If you have some chicken fat this can be an excellent substitute for butter.

2. One tablespoon of lemon juice added to the water will give excellent flavor.

3. Two or three cloves added to the water in which you are about to cook your rice give an interesting and subtle flavor. Many countries use recipes which include the browning of rice before adding any liquids—this is the basic procedure for making any pilau or pilaff.

BROWNED RICE

(Six servings)
Half cup fat; 1 large onion, minced; 1 clove garlic; 1 cup raw rice; 2 cups bouillon or chicken stock; salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste.

1. Heat the fat in a skillet, add the onion and garlic and sauté until the onion is transparent. Add the rice and sauté until golden brown using more fat if necessary.

2. Put the rice into a two-quart saucepan, add the bouillon and cover with a tight lid. Bring to a boil, reduce the heat and simmer until the rice is tender. Remove the lid and allow the rice to dry.

Here is a variation on the theme which is extremely good. It is called Jambalaya and is of Creole origin. This is not the original Jambalaya recipe which is somewhat more elaborate and calls for seafood.

(Eight servings)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Two tablespoons fat; 1 cup finely chopped onion; 1 cup finely chopped green pepper; 2 cloves garlic, minced; 1 cup sliced cooked chicken; 1 cup sliced cooked ham; 15 small pork sausages cut in pieces; 2½ cups canned tomatoes; 1 cup raw rice; 1½ cups chicken broth; ½ teaspoon thyme; 1 tablespoon chopped parsley; ¼ teaspoon chili powder; ¼ teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon black pepper.

Melt the fat in a heavy skillet, add the onion, green pepper and garlic. Sauté until the onion and pepper are tender. Add the chicken, ham and sausage and cook for 5 minutes.

Add the broth, tomatoes, the rice, thyme, parsley and chili powder, salt and pepper. Turn the mixture into a large casserole, cover and bake in the oven until the rice is tender, approximately one hour and fifteen minutes.

Exotic Tastes

When it comes to regional recipes for sandwiches, Canadians reveal an unsuspected taste for the exotic. Ham, cheese and chopped egg may win the country-wide vote as the most used ingredients but at the Hotel Vancouver, for example, it's sliced grapefruit and crabmeat on cracked wheat.

A survey of some of Canada's top hotels, in fact, will turn up an imposing number of unusual favorites. Combining the pungent with the piquant appeals to the palate of many Albertans whose mouths water at the thought of an orange and onion sandwich. To make it, peel slices of peeled orange and onion between two pieces of buttered bread. Long a specialty at Jasper Lodge, it was first introduced as an open-face appetizer on rye.

Dunking your sandwich in good form in Edmonton where the Macdonald Hotel has a tasty dish called the French Dip. Thin slices of rare roast beef are clapped between rounds of French bread and served with a cup of hot beef juice.

The rarest beef sandwich is obtained in Saskatoon where the meat is eaten with the chili still on it. Called Sandwich Tartar, the Benborough adds chopped onion, ground black pepper and anchovy paste to raw minced beef. Guests help themselves by heaping the mixture on French rolls split in half.

Some sandwich fillings lend themselves to the open-face treatment. In Montreal the Queen Elizabeth's Salmon Delight tastes as good as it looks. It's smoked salmon dressed up with sliced eggs, tomato wedges, pickle, olive and lettuce. The eye also triggers the appetite at the Fort Garry in Winnipeg where pickled herring garnished with onion rings is an old favorite.

The gingham dog and the calico cat, Side by side in the shoe-store set. They tried on shoes to wear to school, Both of them wanted Golden Rule!

Four to Win Weekends

An expenses-paid weekend holiday for two at Painter's Lodge has been arranged for a lucky winner of a hidden-weight prize in the Colonist King Fisherman contest.

Another winner will receive a guided Brentwood fishing trip for two with experienced guide Jimmy Gilbert. Winners will be announced Sunday, along with other hidden-weight prizes for July-caught fish.

The Painter's holiday will include guided trips after coho and tye salmon.

The trip has been arranged—Sept. 11 to 13.

Today's list of entries indicates that salmon are tightening lines in almost all areas throughout the island.

Surf Battle Won by Dog

If there were some sort of special award for dogs in the Colonist's King Fisherman contest, Caesar would be right in line.

A small springer spaniel owned by Dr. Peter Banks, of 2997 Seaview, Caesar proved himself to be quite a fisherman at Long Beach on Wednesday.

Not quite big enough to enter in the contest, but quite a prize nevertheless, was the 4½-pound coho that Caesar grabbed out of the surf south of Long Beach, near Wreck Bay.

Scrambling about on rocks between Long Beach and Wreck Bay, Dr. Banks noticed the salmon gobbling up shrimp near the shore.

"My retriever, Brutus, promptly jumped in for it and missed," he said.

In a flash Caesar also leaped in, and he got a grip on the tail, putting his whole head under water to do it.

Button.

Caesar seaward, however, until Dr. Banks' son, Chris, got his hands on the coho as well.

Healthy and in good shape, the coho made a good meal for the Banks family—and Caesar got a good portion—even if he didn't win a Prince Button.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

We sometimes wonder whether Lady Luck really is fickle, or whether she has a keen sense of justice. A stroke of ill luck is often followed by equal good fortune— if only one is not too busy playing himself. Test yourself when East ruffs dummy's diamonds ace at trick one and returns a club. On the spade ace. West shows out. What now?

South failed to allow leeway in case West's barrage had put pressure on North—as it had. The final contract would have been poor even if East had not ruffed away the diamond ace on the opening lead.

Having won the club return and played the trump ace, finding West void, many players would have conceded defeat. South was made of sterner stuff; instead of walling, he tried to figure a distribution which would let him win. By leading the heart queen, he could force West to cover if he had doubleton king, exposing East to a finesse if he had the ten. But there were not enough entries to finesse twice in hearts and once in trumps. Still declarer did not give up; he decided that in order to make the contract, he must find West with the heart K-10 doubleton. He led the heart queen, covered by the king and ace. A heart to the jack dropped the ten, and two more hearts gave dummy a discard. One of South's diamonds was ruffed with the spade queen, the other went on the club queen, and the lead of the spade nine completed a beautifully played hand.

East added up the rubber and went home, reflecting that Lady Luck had many faces. Had he been unable to ruff the diamond ace, and had trumps broken more evenly, declarer would certainly have gone down, finessing the second round of hearts into West's hand and losing a diamond trick as well.

Lupins Suicidal

By M. V. CHERNUT, FRANK

The lupine—particularly the Russell hybrid—has become our most showy perennial flower and is grand for introducing masses of glowing color into our borders. Only too often, though, their cultivation is not understood very well and many good plants have been lost as a result of well-meant misadventure.

Lupins are not long-lived plants even in nature, and the highly-bred hybrids quite literally flower themselves to death. Their short life is further curtailed by allowing them to set seed—a most exhausting process for any plant.

Every summer quite a few letters come to my desk complaining that plants of good colored varieties have reverted to an unattractive muddy blue shade. While it is remotely possible for a perennial plant to change the color of its flower, either through virus infection or by "sporting," this is a rare occurrence.

What actually happens in this: The plants are allowed to set seed and these seeds, cross-pollinated by nearby plants, revert to the old "wild" lupine. Seeds fall into the heart of the parent plant and grow strongly, choking out the less vigorous parent in much the same way as wild suckers will overwhelm a hybrid tea rose.

In the case of the lupine, the wildling is not a sucker from the root but an independent plant grown from self-sown seed, but so intergrown and tangled are the roots and foliage that only an expert could tell the difference between the foliage and stems of the original hybrid and the "cuckoo's egg" which has hatched in its midst.

Seeds should never be allowed to form after flowering. Open-pollinated lupine seeds are seldom worth saving anyhow but, if a few are required, allow only a very few pods to form on any one spike. Each pod contains quite a few seeds, so a couple of pods should be ample for any experimental work.

It is a common belief that lupins will grow and thrive anywhere and under any conditions, but this isn't quite true. These plants have a pronounced distaste for both lime and manure, and any attempts to nourish the clumps with these materials invariably meets with disaster.

By the same token, they need nourishment of some kind, and if you play it safe and give them nothing at all, the soil becomes exhausted and symptoms of malnutrition appear. I have had pretty good results with peat moss and bone meal, and this year I am experimenting by substituting Algaen liquid seaweed in water; this fertilizer, with its high content of minor elements, seems to agree with my lupins. I imagine liquid fish or liquid whale would serve as well.

As I say, individual plants are short-lived, so it is wise to keep a few young, vigorous plants coming along as replacements. Lupins don't take very kindly to division by splitting the clump, and it is best to propagate by means of cuttings.

The best time to take and root these slips is in early spring when the first young shoots to emerge are about three inches tall. Scrape a little soil away and detach the selected shoot from its point of attachment. These will root and grow away quite readily in a mixture of equal parts peat moss and sand, either in a closed cloche or in an open air bed, covering each slip with a jar until new growth is observed.

JACK SMITH Reports a Horror Story

Three, Two, One—Applaud!

The day is coming when there will be no more human events, but only television shows.

I went to Long Beach, Calif., last week to see the finals of the Miss International Beauty Contest.

It turned out, as I might have expected, to be a television show, and I found myself, much to my discomfort, entrapped in that most brainless of group activities—audience participation.

I should have suspected what was up. The finals were scheduled for 5 p.m., an hour of the day that is good for nothing, in our sophisticated society, but cocktails and traffic jams.

This oppressive hour obviously had been chosen for the finals of the beauty contest because in the great eastern cities in which this diversion was to be televised it would be 7 or 8 p.m.

Even so, there was a large and amiable crowd seated in the inner tomb of the city's gloomy municipal auditorium. Conditioned by their home TV sets to the commercial and the "break for station identification" they placidly endured numerous lapses during which the show stopped dead.

Hugh O'Brien was the master of ceremonies. He read his lines from large cards that were being swiftly shuffled by two teams of assistants standing in the aisles among the audience. When it was time for a commercial, O'Brien would step in mid-sentence, and the audience sat in restive silence. We didn't even get to hear the commercials.

During one of these lapses, which seemed longer than the others, a man in a white suit trotted out to tell the live audience that the TV audience was now being fed an eight-minute segment filmed earlier in the day. Just be patient, the minutes ticked off we sat in the dim auditorium, sinking into a state akin to hibernation. Then a man told us, "We'll be going back on the air in a few seconds folks—we'd like to ask you for a lot of applause."

A man with earphones on his head counted down the seconds—three, two, one—and then the audience, which had been sitting dully for eight minutes in front of a blank stage, broke into tumultuous applause, as if everybody was having one hell of a good time.

The other day the Columbia Broadcasting System bought the New York Yankees. So now CBS not only can show these artists playing baseball, they actually own the team. From now on, CBS can produce baseball games, instead of just televising them.

Now that CBS has shown the way, there's no end to it. Maybe NBC can retaliate by purchasing the U.S. Senate, or at least the southern delegation. They could telecast a regular Saturday night filibuster in competition with Gunsmoke.

In time every phase of life that has conflict, drama and mass appeal will have an owner and a sponsor and be produced by a man with earphones and a stopwatch.

And the rest of us will applaud when we're told.

Was Husband's Death Suicide or Murder?

The Harlow Mystery

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — A raging controversy sparked by the current best-seller, Harlow, Al Johnson, you ain't heard nothin' yet!

"My story will supply an hour-by-hour description of the heretofore unexplained details leading up to Bern's death, as well as a full report on the mysterious chain of circumstances that surrounded the inquiry. Most of my material is documented. I will let the reader come to his own conclusion."

The Harlow book and its clever promotion campaign has revived an old controversy: Did producer Paul Bern, platinum blonde Jean Harlow's second husband, die by his own hand, as the death certificate reads, or was he gunned down at the poolside of his Beverly Hills mansion early in the morning of Sept. 5, 1937?

The new version of the actress' tragedy-marked life goes along with the official theory of suicide—to which Willys of Hollywood retorts: "In the words of Harlow. Most of his information was supplied by the star's one-time agent. Like so many other Harlow biographers, Shulman says Bern took his life (barely two months after marrying the dazzling young glamour queen) because he was psychologically unable to consummate the union."

This theory is far from fact, de Mond asserts bluntly. His viewpoint was substantiated in a startling manner only a few nights ago during a TV panel show discussion over a Chicago station.

Former fan-dancer star Sally Rand, one of the guests, along with Shulman, supplied a sudden shock for nocturnal viewers by testifying that she, at 13, had "dated" Bern and that she knew several other young actresses of that era who did likewise.

As Willys forges the melodrama-matic chain of events leading up to the discovery of Bern's body, and subsequent desperate efforts on the part of the giant MGM studio to protect its multi-million dollar investment, his story, I give Hollywood the Willys, takes on the suspense-packed flavor of an Alfred Hitchcock

JEAN HARLOW

Rebels Without a Cause

By Dr. Stuart Rosenberg

Every generation gets the name it deserves.

This one, quite properly, has been labeled the "beat generation."

Truth is not real, the good life unattainable because idealism is an empty, trumped-up, phony illusion, so the beatniks proclaim. Therefore, follow us, they shriek: Eat, drink and drive a sports car!

Some of the physical tattoos of the beat tribe are odd, but revealing: You wear a beard, or what passes for one; in warm weather you must be sure to be seen wearing gloves and scarf; a beret is optional, but it helps; for no good reason, you must spend important hours listening to raucous sounds, pretending to enjoy what passes, these days, for music.

The marks of the tribe are clearly intended to achieve one major purpose: to attract attention in dramatic, non-conforming ways. But the attraction is not too attractive.

The beatniks have turned their backs on society because they are too busy looking in the mirror. Of course, they would deny this, maintaining that if they seem to be looking in the mirror, it is simply because there is nothing to see through the window.

The angry young men seem not to be really interested in what is going on in the world. They have lost taste for mankind and are derivative of those who speak of issues larger than their own self-seeking.

Most of our beatnik friends have really lost hope in the power of ideas. They refuse to go along with the mob; so they make their own mob and go along with them. Their music is cacophonous, discordant—full of the frustrations and the tragedy of men who have little to say when they should be saying much.

Their language is esoteric. They are not really communicating; and they don't care if they don't, for no ideas or ideals are really worth transmitting.

the anarchistic nihilism of "who cares, anyway?" In the name of personality we are witnessing the moral decay of a large number of young people.

The tragic element in all of this is the fact that rebellion, of itself, can be made into a sacred instrument. When this happens, men are liberated from their bondage to others and from self-debasement, as well.

But when you refuse to pour moral content into your mutiny, you are no longer capable of becoming free. On the contrary, such rebels without a cause are but slaves to their own selfish passions.

For the many imperials of society they have falsely substituted the dictatorship of the self. When they proclaim that God is dead, all truth vain, idealism a hollow fraud, they are really saying that only they are alive, and only their momentary passions meaningful.

But the morning dawns after the night, and in the clearer light of day, the shadows are dispersed. And that which appeared lovely in the dark, is ugly and sordid in the shining light. The sun also rises.

Too many of our younger people are living without a commitment in the world—to the world. They have no desire to give back to society some of the things they have taken. They lack a vision and a hope. They are rebelling against the world without contributing to it.

We need rebels—rebels with a social vision and a social passion. We need idol-smashers—iconoclasts who do not substitute their own feet of clay for the gods of clay. We need healthy realism, clear-eyed vigorous criticism, open-minded self-assessment.

But we can do without the vanities and morbidities, the anarchies and confusions of the beating beatniks. They cry out against the world. But they have not yet learned the meaning of pain. Their hearts are not really aching; they have a belly-ache, and not much more.

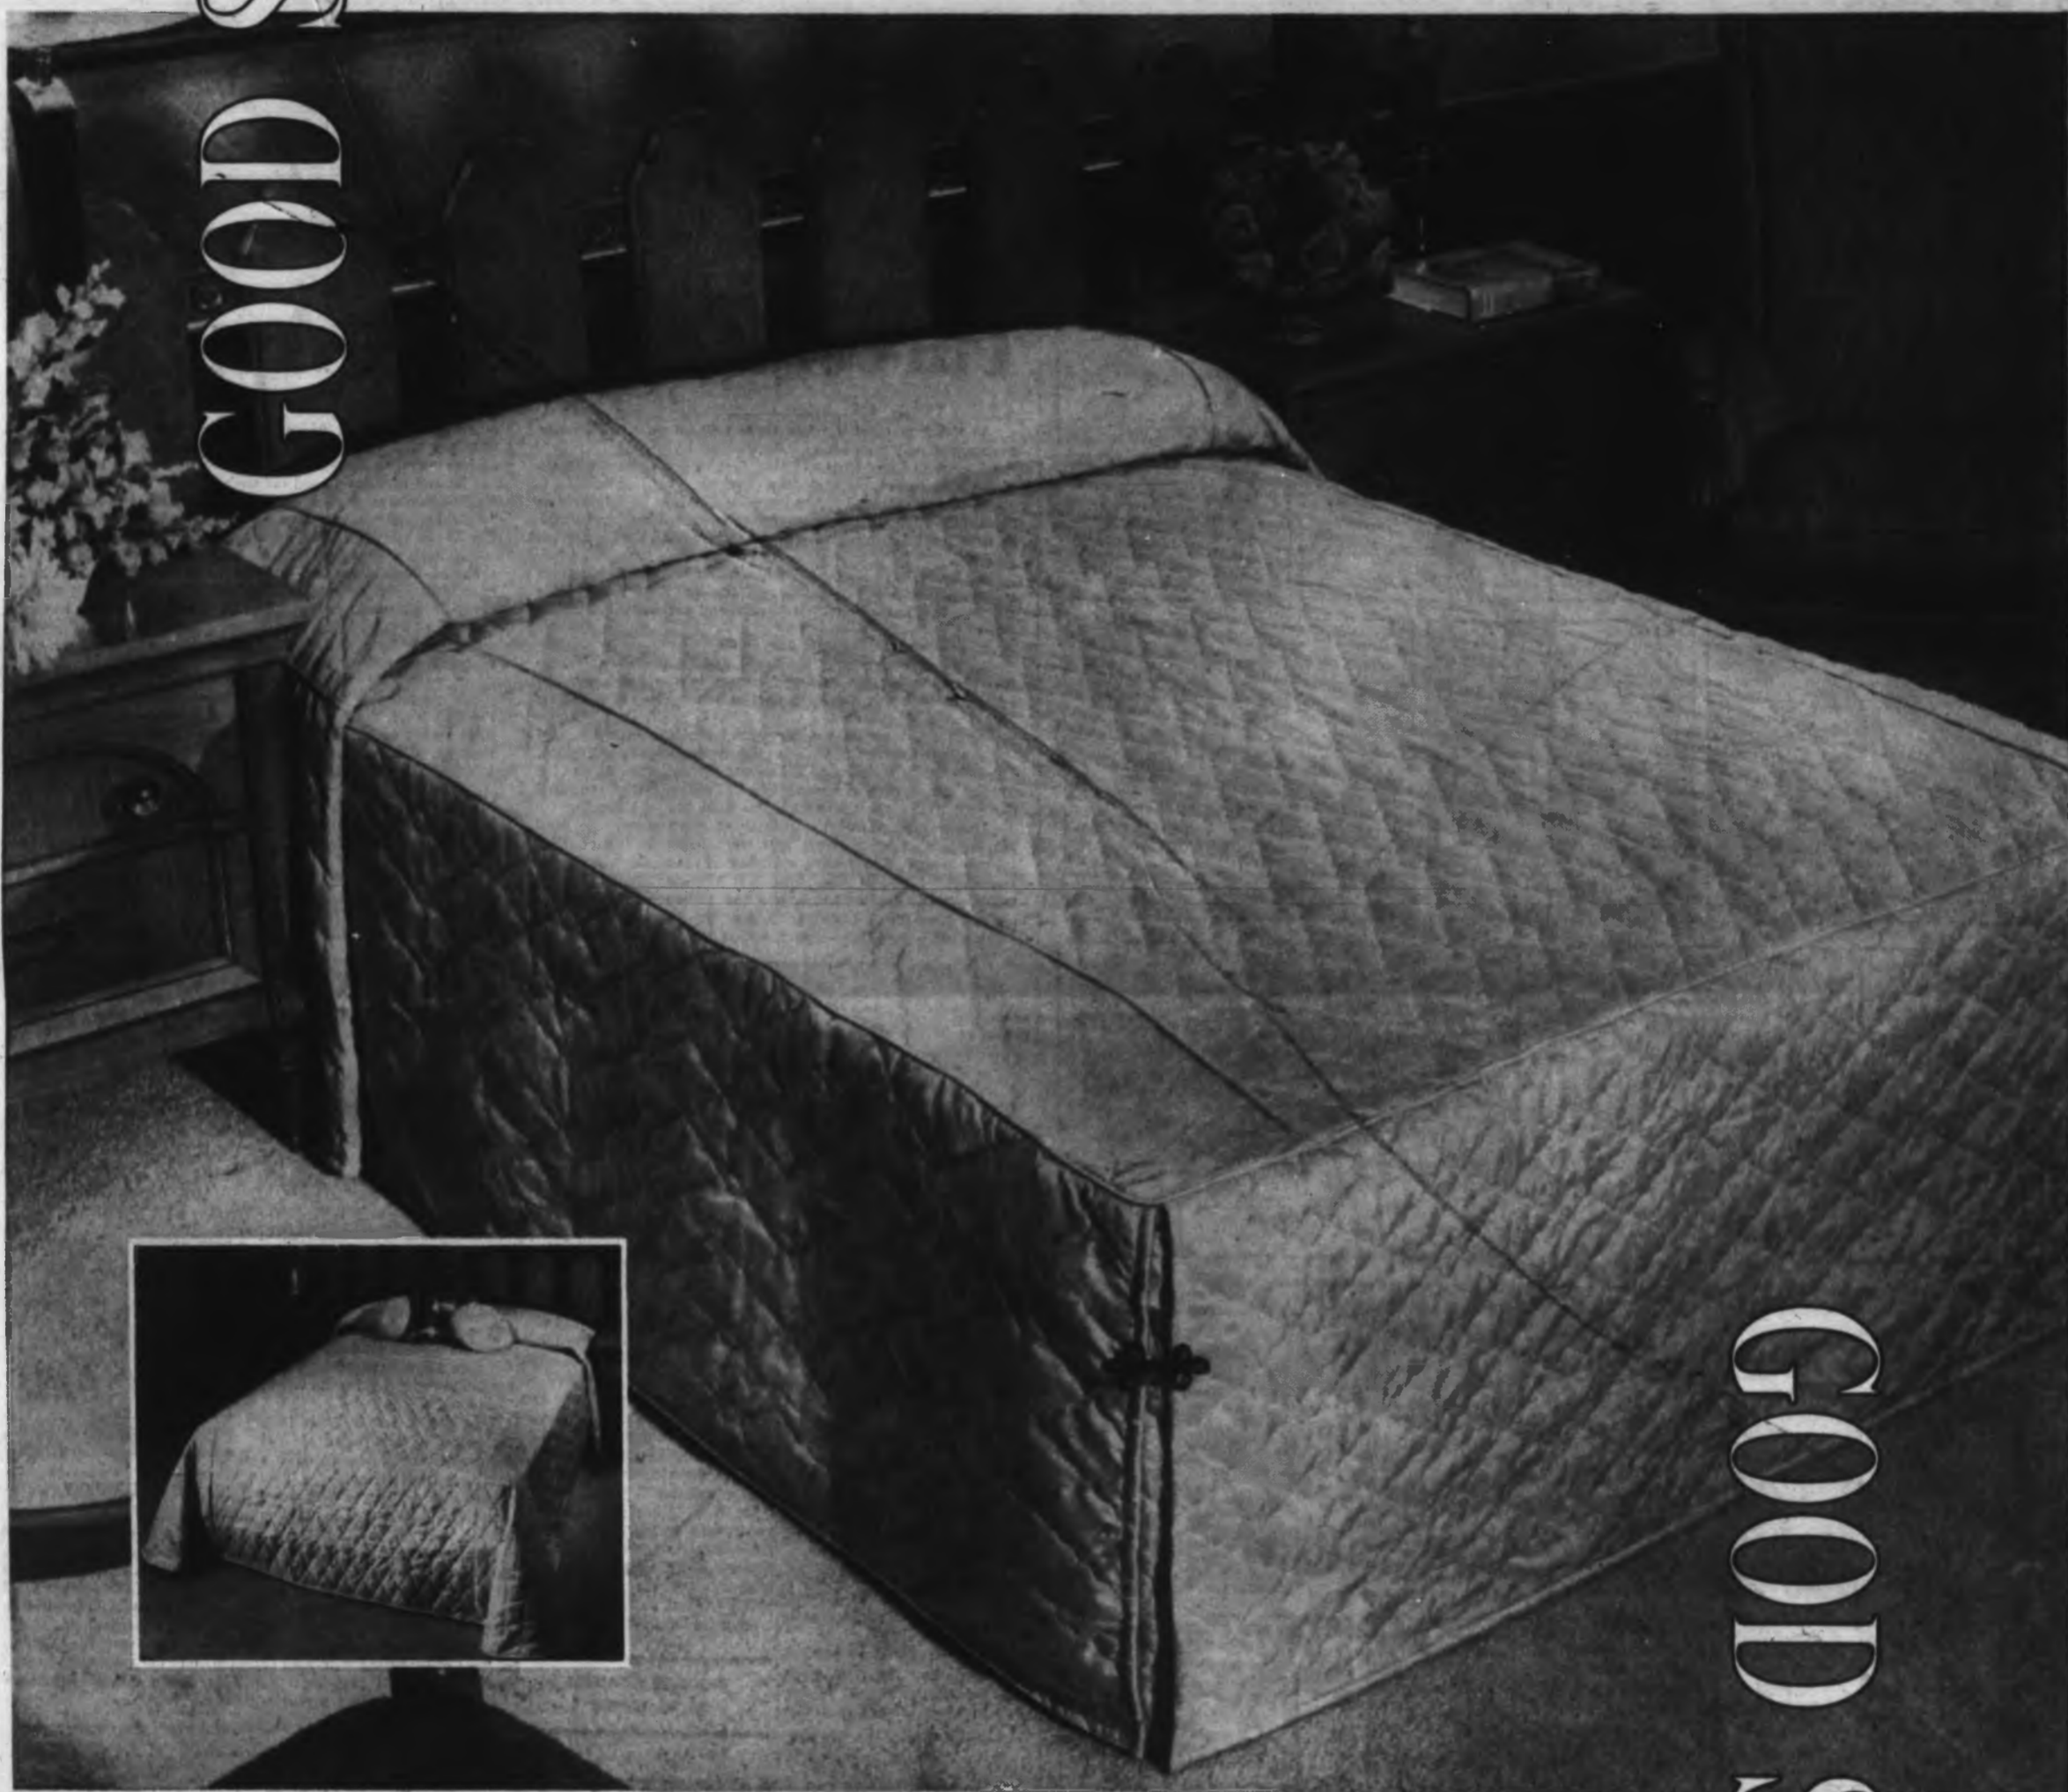

They need to grow up, to learn how to sacrifice; what not to sacrifice. They are thinking of today. They should be planning for tomorrow.

New Crises Threaten Saigon Regime

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam appeared Wednesday night to be moving into its most dangerous crisis since becoming independent of France in 1954. Potential trouble mushroomed for Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh's U.S.-backed regime.

Buddhist critics watched the government warily on the eve of the anniversary of the pagoda raids in which the late President Ngo Dinh Diem's security forces arrested hundreds of monks and nuns last year. Student dissidents rallied again. About 200 challenged Khanh's right to the presidency.

which he took over Sunday, and accused the United States of intervening in South Vietnamese domestic affairs at a noisy gathering in the student union headquarters. It was the first of a series of protest sessions scheduled to run into next week. The primary threat remains the Communist-led Viet Cong guerrillas. Viet Cong strength led Khanh to remark two weeks ago that "an enemy army now is inside South Viet Nam."

A Lingering Look

Goat Gores Girl In B.C. Zoo

PENTICTON (CP)—A lingering look at a corralled mountain goat in a privately-owned museum and zoo has cost a little girl her life.

Police said Wednesday they believe Susan Dawn McMann, 7, leaned her head against three-inch fencing surrounding the corral as she dangled behind her parents and was gores by the animal's nine-inch horns.

"The family just heard a scream and saw the child lying on the ground outside the fence," said a police spokesman.

IN SECONDS
"It all happened in seconds. The family had only just turned their backs on the corral."

Victor McMann, the girl's father, drove the injured child in his own car to hospital here.

Hospital authorities said the child died in the operating room Tuesday night about five hours after she was injured.

BRAIN DAMAGE
An autopsy revealed the girl suffered brain damage and that she had suffered a puncture wound in her forehead. Police said an inquest would be held but no date was immediately set.

The McManns, with their four other children, had been on holiday in the area for two weeks from their home at Ladner.

STOPPED AT ZOO
They had stopped at the zoo near Okanagan Falls, about 20 miles south of here.

"We were just going towards the car to leave," Mr. McMann said in a telephone interview.

"Susan was behind us still at the corral and no one saw what happened."

Brothers, Sister Drown

CORNWALL, N.Y. (AP) A 12-year-old girl fell into Woodbury Creek Wednesday and her three brothers jumped in to save her.

None could swim, and all four died.

The victims, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Perrone, of Cornwall, were identified by police as John Jr., 13, Dolores, 12, Tony, 10, and Rocco, 5.

Laura Conklin, 12, told police Dolores slipped from a rock and fell into the creek. Tony leaped in after her and the others followed him, she said.

Cornwall is in the southern part of New York State.

Congolese Rebels Threaten Bukavu

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The Communist-backed rebellion that grips most of the Eastern Congo threatened Tuesday night to wrest Bukavu from the control of Premier Moise Tshombe's government.

Fragmentary radio messages from Bukavu, a provincial capital midway between rebel-held Albertville and Stanleyville, said there was fighting in the streets; they indicated the Congolese army garrison was pulling out.

ABOVE OFF HAND
The garrison, totalling about 800 troops, last weekend drove off a rebel band that had penetrated Bukavu's outskirts. There was speculation the subsequent uprising may have been staged by a rebel fifth column within the city, a former tourist resort crowded lately with nearly 80,000 refugees.

PANIC REPORTED
The radio accounts said panic developed when the fighting broke out about 5 p.m. Subsequent messages gave the impression the Congolese troops were falling back toward the frontier of Rwanda, less than three miles away. Bukavu's airport, the republic's Belgian - offered army share in guard duty at the airport.

BUKAVU IMPORTANT
Since Stanleyville fell two weeks ago, Bukavu has been the only important city in the northeastern Congo in government hands. Located on a peninsula jutting into Lake Kivu, it is the capital of central Kivu Province. Most of its white residents fled earlier this month when rebels were reported moving in from the west.

The Bukavu battle developed a few hours after Tshombe's government ordered deportation of all citizens of neighboring

MP's Riding Robbed, Loot Total Out of Date

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Nicholson advised the Commons Wednesday that loot in Canada's mail-bag thefts between April 23, 1963 and the end of last month reached $715,640.

He was replying to a written question from Louis-Joseph Figeon (PC—Joliette—Assomption—Montcalm).

As he spoke post office investigators were on their way to the scene of yet another mail robbery — in Mr. Figeon's riding.

Thieves escaped with the contents of a mail truck near L'Assomption, Que., overnight and the driver was discovered Wednesday in handcuffs near the abandoned vehicle.

A post office spokesman said no cash or money orders was known to be in the mailbags.

New Satellite To Beam Olympic Games

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Syncom 3, a glittering "Olympic star" communications satellite, soared into a preliminary orbit Wednesday en route to a stationary outpost to televise the Olympic Games from Japan.

If the satellite successfully executes a number of complex manoeuvres in the next 12 days, it will come to a seeming standstill high above the mid-Pacific Ocean and be in position to speed to Canada, the United States and Europe television pictures of the Oct. 10-24 Games in Tokyo.

Syncom 3 is a research vehicle and TV is not its main assignment. But successful intercontinental transmission of pictures of the world's greatest sport spectacle would be dramatic evidence of what satellites can do to improve global communications.

The U.S. defence department also is considering use of the satellite to improve communications between Washington and South Viet Nam.

Syncom 3 showed early that it is ready to serve as a communications beacon in the sky. As it whirled over the Pacific hours after launching from Cape Kennedy, it received and beamed back to a communications ship a recording of the music of The Star Spangled Banner. Voice and teletype communications also were successful.

United States, Japanese, Canadian and European interests have earmarked nearly $1,000,000 to demonstrate Olympic TV capability with the satellite. Practically none of the transmissions will be live, principally because of the time differences. The major Olympic action will occur, for example, at hours when most North Americans are asleep.

Air Units Returned

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Turkey and Greece announced Wednesday they are returning military units to the Atlantic Alliance that were withdrawn when the two neighbors seemed on the brink of war over Cyprus.

Capitals of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization had feared that the two NATO nations would come to blows and shatter the eastern flank of the West's defence line against any Soviet aggression.

Turkey was the first to announce that air units withdrawn from NATO during air raids on Greek-Cypriots on the northwest coast of Cyprus Aug. 8-9 were returned to Alliance control.

After an emergency meeting with King Constantine, Premier George Papandreu of Greece announced in Athens:

Makarios Thanks Nikita

MOSCOW (UPI)—Cyprus President Makarios has sent a message to Premier Khrushchev thanking him for "sympathetic and powerful support" in the Cyprus crisis, the Soviet Tass agency reported Wednesday.

'There's Going to Be a Hit'

Threat to Goldwater Diverts GOP Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of a threat on the life of Senator Barry Goldwater, a plane carrying the Republican presidential nominee was diverted Wednesday from National Airport to Dulles International Airport outside Washington.

A waiting limousine took Goldwater, back from giving a speech in Springfield, Ill., away from Dulles Airport 20 miles from Washington.

Goldwater's press secretary, Paul Wagner, said the senator's Lockheed Electra got orders in the air to switch from National, just outside Washington, and land at Dulles.

The nature of the threat was not immediately disclosed.

BOMB THREAT
Goldwater himself said he understood it was a bomb threat.

But in Springfield, Police Chief Silver Suarez said it was a threat that Goldwater was to be shot.

Chief Suarez said that at 12:52 p.m. the police department received a telephone call from a man who identified himself as Lt. Bruce Allen.

The caller told Det. Sgt. John Nolan: "There is going to be a hit on Goldwater. Do you know what a hit is?"

The chief said that Nolan answered, "yes, that he's going to be shot."

Port Alberni Claims Nearly All Settled

VANCOUVER (CP)—More than 700 claims totalling about $1,500,000 arose from Alaska tidal wave damage at Port Alberni. It was disclosed Wednesday by the Canadian Independent Adjustment Conference, which was retained by the provincial government to assess uninsured flood damage. When about 12 remaining claims have been settled, the total outlay will be about $1,450,000.

Canada Reaches for Red Arm

MONTREAL (CP)—Some national organizations may yet come forward with funds but the executive director of the Rehabilitation Institute of Montreal said Wednesday the institute will have to borrow enough money to pay for rights to the Soviet-made artificial arm.

The director, Dr. Gustave Gingras, saw the arm during a week's visit to the Soviet Union last month and was told he could have manufacturing rights to it for $27,000. Legal fees and other expenses involved in the acquisition would bring the cost to $30,000.

An appeal for funds was made July 24 and brought some contributions from individual donors, the doctor said, and several national organizations have indicated they might contribute to covering the cost.

tute that we borrow the money and then do our best afterwards to cover the loan," Dr. Gingras said.

He said in an interview that the institute could develop a limb-motivated like the Soviet model—through its own efforts. But such development would take "enormous" amounts of money and two to four years of work.

The arm is driven by a motor based in the hand and controlled by electric signals picked up by electrodes in contact with muscles of the body.

Dr. Gingras said the same principle could be used to develop a motorized artificial leg.

Individual arms could be bought from the Russians for about $700 each and parts could be purchased too.

"The Russians don't seem to be in this to make money," Dr. Gingras said. "They are covering costs, that's all."

Decide Season's Best Game On Kapp to Fleming 'Bomb'

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions had to use "The Bomb" last night at Empire Stadium to stop Saskatchewan's aroused Roughriders in a spectacular Western Football Conference game played before the second largest crowd in conference history—35,618 worried but enthralled fans.

and 10 situation on their own 35-yard line.

Joe Kapp went back and threw the ball long with Willie Fleming speeding down field. Defender Bob Placek appeared ready to intercept when Fleming suddenly cut back, stole the ball and then took off for the last 40 yards of a 75-yard scoring play.

No one, of course, could get close.

Lions scored again in the last minute after taking over on downs only one yard out for the final 27-18 count but it was "The Bomb" which broke up the season's most thrilling game.

It was a hard-fought, bitter struggle, replete with penalties and injured players, which saw two players tossed out in the fourth quarter—Buchanan for a fumble with Walt Bilecki and defensive end Dick Fouts of the Lions for protesting too strenuously when called for clipping.

LIONS TAKE OVER

James' field goal opened the scoring but the Lions, using Swift as their battering ram and using the pass and Fleming to keep the Riders worried made touchdowns of 75 and 63 yards for two converted touchdowns and a 14-3 half-time lead.

But what looked like an easy win suddenly came up tough as the Lions faced a new club in a second half which provided about all the excitement, particularly in the fourth quarter, anyone could stand.

FUMBLE STARTS IT

On the first play after the kickoff, Kapp was hit hard and Riders took possession on the ensuing fumble only 27 yards out. They made it in four plays as Lancaster took off from the 14-yard line for five yards, then lateraled to Buchanan for the score.

James was wide with the convert and it was 9-14 — and the Riders were firmly in the saddle.

REED BRILLIANT

George Reed, a pile-driving runner, went 57 yards in five successive carries to get within eight yards but the Lions took over on downs just as the third quarter ended.

They got something started but it ended when Ron Morris fumbled and Bill Clarke recovered on the B.C. 26.

Riders got within 10 yards, then Ron Lancaster was thrown for a big loss, back to

Neal Beaumont took the kickoff to the 35-yard line, Kapp threw an incomplete pass, then hit Fleming.

The desperate Riders were stopped as Bill Munsey made an interception, got the ball back with two minutes left. Lancaster completed one pass to get to his 35. Three plays later, with Tom Hinton and Emery Barnes breaking through to spill him for 21 and 13-yard losses, he was on the one.

Swift boomed through on the first play.

San Francisco Giants fought to a draw in a bean-ball game yesterday, but lost a ball game as they dropped a riotous 7-1 decision to Cincinnati Reds to fall six games behind Philadelphia Phillies in the National League. The Phils beat Chicago, 9-5.

Giants starter Ron Herbel started it all when he hit the Reds' slugger in the first inning. Robinson started toward the mound and players from both dugouts rushed onto the field.

That incident was finally smoothed over, but in the second inning Cincinnati's Bob Purkey hit Jim Hart, and in the fourth, Giants' John Pregrener jumped a pitch into Purkey. This brought a warning from umpire Chris Pelekoudas and cost Pregrener a $50 fine.

And to cap the afternoon, Purkey hit Hart again in the seventh.

Hebenton Helps At Puck School

Andy Hebenton has been added to the coaching staff of the Esquimalt Sports Centre's hockey clinic which begins Monday.

Hebenton, who played last year with Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League after a number of seasons with New York Rangers, will assist head coach Joe Iannarelli during the two-week clinic.

Highlight of the sessions will come Aug. 31 when Montreal Canadiens' John Ferguson and Terry Harper will present the films of the 1964 Stanley Cup playoffs. Harper and Ferguson will spend the rest of the day on the ice with the boys.

How do you make an extra-dry martini? That may seem an extraordinary question with which to start a column on golf.

Yet the answer (seven parts gin, one part dry vermouth, stirred and strained meticulously, with pearl onion added) is something which should be taught all schoolboys at the age of 14.

Not to encourage them to drink but simply to learn there is only one way to do things—the right way.

This strange train of thought began passing through my mind since reading the most wonderful of all the tributes paid to the late Ian Fleming, golfer and creator of that magnificent cat, James Bond.

Fleming, a fine amateur golfer himself, died last week and it was little wonder that Henry Longhurst, finest of all living golf-writers, should have written an essay about him which thousands will treasure.

Neither was it surprising that Longhurst should have referred to the famous Bond vs. Goldfinger golf match which was just a little more exciting to me than winning the British Open Championship in 1951.

Ian Fleming wrote it superbly. But I must take issue with Longhurst who, in his appraisal of it, sides with Fleming in a quite unwarranted attack on those "who try to look smart on the golf course."

"Who, indeed," he wrote, "has not seen replicas of the ghastly Goldfinger with everything exactly right?"

"The brilliantly polished, almost orange shoes; the plus-four suit too well cut; the plus-fours themselves pressed down the sides; the heather mixture stockings with the green garter tabs; and the huge black bag full of American clubs, each in its little cardboard tube, the wooden clubs hooded with leather covers bearing the name of . . . etc., etc."

The Shoe Fitted

My hair stood on end, almost, as I read it. Never before have I read such an adequate description of myself.

So this is what Ian Fleming thought of me after we had met at a pro-amateur tournament! And this is what Longhurst thinks of me now!

I notice that Longhurst does not recall for us what James Bond was wearing on that particular occasion. A pity, that, because just as Bond liked his martini extra-dry (seven, not six-and-a-half parts gin and one, not one-and-a-half parts dry vermouth) he was a meticulous dresser for every single occasion.

In fact, I believe their mutual assault on Goldfinger's sartorial efforts could be applied to practically every successful professional golfer of the past decade.

My own choice of colors (magenta socks with sky-blue plus-tens and a primrose yellow shirt for example, may be a little unusual. But in common with Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Henry Cotton, Peter Thomson and about a hundred others, I would not feel fully prepared for an important round if everything were not immaculately pressed, cleaned and polished.

Will Never Give It Up

Never, ever, shall I give up this fight for smartness on the golf course. Not even in memory of my author-hero, Ian Fleming. Not even to court a kind word from my golf-critic hero, Henry Longhurst.

May I commend that advice to you, even if you are the lowliest public-course hacker ever to miss every single fairway over 18 holes.

Remember this. Goldfinger could never have been born a natural golfer. His background, his environment, his nefarious profession saw to that. Yet, in that classic fictional match, he took the superman James Bond to the eighteenth before being beaten.

True, he indulged in cheating on the seventeenth, but—had it not been for his sartorial turn-out—he would certainly have gone down 6 and 3 long before he got there.

No, there is no substitute for meticulous preparation for a game of golf. The right clothes, the equipment in perfect order, all give a glow of mental wellbeing. I'm sure they help you concentrate.

For once, long live the conformists!

Record 94 for Games South Africa Barred

LAUSANNE — The International Olympics Committee has officially announced that South Africa has been barred from the 19th Olympic Games in Tokyo because it has refused to disassociate itself from racial segregation in sports.

The move followed repeated appeals by the committee to South Africa to get rid of discrimination in sports or be banned from the Olympics in October.

South Africa replied to the latest appeal last week by saying it could not comply with the segregation-free conditions set by the IOC.

JUST MAKE IT

Despite South Africa's ouster, however, this year's games have drawn a record entry. Greece, the mother of the Olympics, beat the registration deadline by minutes Monday to become the 13th nation, and Costa Rica filed an application Tuesday.

Costa Rica is expected to be accepted to bring the total entrants to 94, 10 more than competed in the 1960 games in Rome.

Roger Enters Fourth Round

OTTAWA—Victoria's Roger Skilling continued in his winning ways in the under-14 division at the Canadian Open junior tennis championships here yesterday as he won his second and third round matches.

Skilling dropped his first set in under-14 competition in his second round match with Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md. But the Victorian still won the match, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3.

Skilling had less trouble in his third round contest as he disposed of Mark Landman of Hamtramck, Mich., 6-3, 6-0.

Politics, however, have begun to play their inevitable part in the games. North Korea has protested to the IOC at not being permitted to use its political title of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. South Korea, entering a separate team, has accepted its geographic designation.

Indonesia, too, is the centre of a small storm resulting from political considerations. It submitted entries for four events for which it is ineligible.

REASONS WHY

Indonesia is ineligible for swimming since it withdrew from the International Swimming Federation last year after it was suspended by the IOC for barring Israel and Nationalist China from the Asian Games in 1962.

And it did not participate in the regional elimination rounds in field hockey, basketball and water polo and thus is ineligible.

Nothing to Do with Baseball

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON (PNS) — When the Columbia Broadcasting System announced it had purchased the New York Yankees baseball team, many people were curious as to why CBS had done it. We can now reveal that the acquisition of the Yankees had nothing to do with baseball, but was part of the network's shakeup of the news department.

Rumor has it that Yogi Berra will be the new anchor man at the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City and that CBS will use Yankee players on the floor to report the convention.

Walter Cronkite, Eric Sevareid, Roger Mudd, and Martin Agronoff will be ousted up and sent out to play the Kansas City A's during that week. CBS feels it has to have a new image and the Yankees are associated with winners.

This is how it may go in Atlantic City next week.

"Good evening, ladies and gentlemen, this is Yogi Berra speaking to you from Atlantic City where the Democrats are opening their all-important series against the Republicans. Let's go down to the floor now and hear a word from Mickey Mantle."

"Well, Yogi, this is quite a ball game down here, as you can see. Bobby Kennedy has been struck out by Lyndon Johnson, the playing manager, and may be traded to New York before the fall. Johnson has walked the rest of his cabinet and no one has been able to get a hit off him yet."

"Thanks, Mickey. Now let's pick up Roger Maris and see what he has to report."

"Yogi, my information down here is that Johnson is playing this one close to his vest. He has Hubert Humphrey, Gene McCarthy, and Mike Mansfield all warming up in the bullpen, but he hasn't indicated whom he'll use against the Republicans. The Democrats have been complaining that the Republicans have been hitting a lot of fouls lately and Johnson would like to find someone who can make their sluggers pop up."

"Who's on first now, Roger?"

"Nobody knows, Yogi. At the moment the Democratic team seems to be pretty disorganized."

"Thanks, Roger. Now let's go over to Elston Howard, who has been covering right field for CBS."

"Well, Yogi, there still seems to be a question of who will play for Mississippi. There are two runners and only one will be allowed on the field. The regular Mississippi players insist they should be in the game, but an insurgent group says the regular Mississippi team wants to throw the game to the Republicans. There could be quite a fracas over this one."

"Thanks, Elston. Now let's hear a word from our sponsor."

"Now back to Convention Hall. This is Yogi Berra, bringing you the latest on the Democratic National Convention."

"We've just had a bulletin that Bobby Kennedy says he wants to play for the Senators if Bob Wagner will have him. There have been some complaints that Kennedy has never played in the New York league and is not eligible for a position. But his fans say he would be able to play anywhere he wants to."

"Here comes Lyndon Johnson on the field. He seems to be talking to the newsmen. Let's pick him up on the mike."

"Ah feel Ah got a great team and Ah'm for everybody in this league as long as they play ball with me."

Water Bomber Fleet Still Growing

Almost ready to undergo flight tests, a monster Martin Mars flying boat is now getting its coat of red-and-white paint at Patricia Bay Airport.

It will be the third former transport and freight plane converted for use as a water bomber.

A fourth Mars stands unconverted at the airport.

Powered by four Wright Cyclone engines, the bomber will scoop up water at 50 to 60 knots. It takes just 25 seconds for the 6,000-gallon tanks to fill.

Supervising the overhaul of the 200-foot wingspan, 120-foot-long mammoth of the air, is Nels Christensen, chief engineer with Forest Industries Flying Tankers.

Mr. Christensen is also flight engineer when the bombers go into action, dumping their loads on burning forest areas.

Esquimalt To Skip Bus Probe

Esquimalt Council has decided not to participate in a Greater Victoria decision to have an outside firm investigate effects of a fare increase by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Transit System.

In a letter to Mayor Wilson the council has asked that before any fare increases are authorized, arrangements be made for the municipalities to meet with provincial government representatives and discuss the matter.

UNANIMOUS VOTE

Council voted unanimously against the proposal by the special transit committee that the firm of Simpson & Curiale be engaged as agents to act for the municipalities in hearings before the Public Utilities Commission.

Council asked that a letter be addressed to the premier or the provincial secretary referring to the proposed increase.

It suggested the letter should stress the effects an estimated 21 per cent decrease in passenger traffic would have on downtown business congestion and street parking.

Steelheading on Cowichan Wins Film Festival Award

A film, Steelhead Fishing in the Cowichan River, was one of the award winners at the Victoria International Film Festival wound up its season with prize-giving ceremonies at the Empress Hotel Wednesday.

The film was made by Karl Spreitz and featured well-known guide and painter Ricky Ciccimarra. Boh are Victorians.

The 20-minute documentary depicts an actual fishing trip, and is noted for its authenticity. It won the British Columbia award, one of nine category prizes.

Officials hailed the success of the festival, pointing to an attendance of 25,000 — up 5,000 over last year — as evidence of the program's popularity.

Paul Courtice, director of the festival, said the attendance figure was achieved despite inclement weather.

"The rain almost ruined us," he said. "There's no telling how many people would have come to the showings if we had not been forced to reschedule so many of them."

As the awards were handed out, officials spoke of the vitality and cultural achievement of the festival.

Top prize went to France for its film titled Montagnes Magiques, and second prize was given to Canada for Fields of Sacrifice.

All awards were wooden plaques carved in the shape of salmon.

Britain won the special award of distinction for the quality of its entries.

Category awards included:

Employment Office Man Says:

School Dropouts a Tragedy

A plea to have students remain at school has been issued by George Bevis, manager of the Victoria National Employment office.

"It is a very tragic thing," he comments, "to see a young person who is capable of better things become dissatisfied and quit school to earn a laborer's wages."

"Many of them have every intention of going back to school after they have earned a stake, but very few of them ever do."

"Consequently they find themselves trapped in a level of employment with very little chance of breaking out."

He pointed out that "they can find work fairly readily while they have their youth and vigor, but even so they are in a group where the continuity of work is never very good."

It is also a group that is hardest hit by automation.

Mr. Bevis suggests that parents and friends should join teachers in considering the potential of a student, and then do everything possible to keep him in school until he reaches his optimum level.

Mini-Metro

In-Camera Sessions Deplored

By A. H. MURPHY

Five out of nine area representatives who will attend the first provincially-sponsored mini-metro meeting today have protested the fact that it will be closed to the public.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Wednesday that the first session, designed to fashion mini-metro legislation, would be held "in-camera."

He also said it was likely meetings would continue to be closed until members of the legislature had a chance to see the type of legislation delegates would propose.

One out of the nine delegates said he understood the reasons for a closed meeting, two were non-committal and one could not be reached for comment.

The five who were against the "in-camera" meeting saw no reason why the initial and all subsequent meetings designed to explore mini-metro should not be open.

"I see no reason why this meeting should be closed," said Reeve Allan Cox, of Oak Bay.

"After all there is nothing mystifying or magical to be discussed. In view of the fact that the minister has made good use of the press and public platform to get his ideas of mini-metro across, I think it should be open."

Four others who will attend the meeting and who were against a closed session were: William Reader, elected from Colwood; R. H. Willing, Langford; K. W. Rainey, Metcheson; and A. E. Beasley, View Royal.

Some Members Agree

Reeve A. C. Wurtele, who will represent Esquimalt, said that because it is a preliminary meeting and delegates do not even know what was on the agenda, it is probably better closed.

"Well, it's the provincial government's meeting, so I suppose they're calling the rules," said Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson.

North Saanich representative J. B. Cumming was also non-committal.

"I don't know just what is intended at this meeting," he said, "and until I do know I can't say whether or not it should be private."

Confirming that today's meeting would be closed, Mr. Campbell emphasized that it would be of an exploratory nature.

The big problem, he said, would be to design legislation aimed at the formation of a joint services board. Until the provincial legislature had a chance to see the proposed act it could hardly be made public.

Mr. Campbell said that reports would be made from time to time, possibly to councils and other bodies designated by the meeting.

"The people in my area are going to screen their heads off if these meetings are closed," said Langford's R. H. Willing.

"I was afraid from the beginning that this was going to happen."

Another thing which worried Mr. Willing was that today's meeting, and probably subsequent ones, would be held in the afternoon.

Working People Restricted

From Quesnel, where he is attending a fire chiefs' convention, Mr. Beasley said:

"What are they up to anyway? I can't see appointing people to a public board and then holding closed meetings. Of course this meeting should be open to the public."

"I was going to the meeting today under the impression that things were in the formative stage, but that's no reason why it should be closed," said K. J. Rainey, elected Metcheson delegate.

"I intended and still intend to let people out my way know what is going on."

Adamantly opposed to afternoon meetings of the study group, composed of mayors, reeves and elected representatives from the unorganized areas, was William Reader, of Colwood.

"I made it quite clear at the meeting in Belmont that I would pull for evening meetings so that anyone could attend," he said.

"These afternoon sessions absolutely exclude working people."

HMCS Margaree

VMD May Win $3,500,000 Job

It appeared likely Wednesday that the reconversion contract on the destroyer-escort HMCS Margaree would be awarded to Victoria Machinery Depot, but no official confirmation could be obtained.

The navy said no unclassified information was available and a VMD spokesman said the yard had no official information on any contract award.

AT DOCKYARD

The Margaree is still berthed at HMC Dockyard after a visit to the Seattle Sea Fair a few weeks ago.

The contract is expected to be worth $3,500,000 and would give work to 250 men for 18 months.

Victoria shipyard officials, union leaders and politicians early this year expressed grave fears that modernization of HMCS Skeena and Margaree would go to eastern shipyards.

A delegation from Victoria and Vancouver, including Mayor R. B. Wilson, Ald. A. W. Toome and Chamber of Commerce president E. E. Pearlman, went to Ottawa to interview the prime minister on the question, but the contract for conversion of HMCS Skeena was subsequently awarded to an eastern yard.

TWO CITY BIDS

When tenders were called on HMCS Margaree only West Coast shipyards were invited to bid.

Yarrows Ltd. and VMD both submitted bids.

U.S. Ship Here Aug. 27 to 31

The U.S. Navy's radar picket ship USS Interpreter will visit HMC Dockyard from Aug. 27 to 31. Commanded by Lt. Cmdr. J. E. Biron, she carries 14 officers and 180 enlisted men.

New Crises Threaten Saigon Regime

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam appeared Wednesday night to be moving into its most dangerous crisis since becoming independent of France in 1954. Potential trouble mushroomed for Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh's U.S.-backed regime.

Buddhist critics watched the government warily on the eve of the anniversary of the pagoda raids in which the late President Ngo Dinh Diem's security forces arrested hundreds of monks and nuns last year. Student dissidents rallied again. About 200 challenged Khanh's right to the presidency, which he took over Sunday, and accused the United States of intervening in South Vietnamese domestic affairs at a noisy gathering in the student union headquarters. It was the first of a series of protest sessions scheduled to run into next week. The primary threat remains the Communist-led Viet Cong guerrillas. Viet Cong strength led Khanh to remark two weeks ago that "an enemy army now is inside South Viet Nam."

GOAT KILLS GIRL

PENTICTON (CP)—A lingering look at a corralled mountain goat in a privately-owned museum and zoo has cost a little girl her life. Police said Wednesday they believe Susan Dawn McMan, 7, leaped her head against three-inch fencing surrounding the corral as she dallied behind her parents and was gored by the animal's nine-inch horns.

"The family just heard a scream and saw the child lying on the ground outside the fence," said a police spokesman. "It all happened in seconds. The family had only just turned their backs on the corral."

Victor McMan, the girl's father, drove the injured child in his own car to hospital here. Hospital authorities said the child died in the operating room Tuesday night about five hours after she was injured.

BRAIN DAMAGE
An autopsy revealed the girl suffered brain damage and that she had suffered a puncture wound in her forehead. Police said an inquest would be held but no date was immediately set.

STOPPED AT 800
They had stopped at the zoo near Okanagan Falls, about 20 miles south of here.

"We were just going towards the car to leave," Mr. McMan said in a telephone interview. "Susan was behind us still at the corral and no one saw what happened."

Brothers, Sister Drown

CORNWALL, N.Y. (AP) — A 12-year-old girl fell into Woodbury Creek Wednesday and her three brothers jumped in to save her. None could swim, and all four died.

The victims, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Perrone, of Cornwall, were identified by police as John Jr., 13, Dolores, 12, Tony, 10, and Rocco, 5.

Laura Conklin, 12, told police Dolores slipped from a rock and fell into the creek. Tony leaped in after her and the others followed him, she said.

Cornwall is in the southern part of New York State.

MP's Riding Robbed, Loot Total Out of Date?

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Nicholson advised the Commons Wednesday that loot in Canada's mail-bag thefts between April 23, 1963 and the end of last month reached $715,640.

He was replying to a written question from Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette—L'Assomption—Montcalm).

As he spoke post office investigators were on their way to the scene of yet another mail robbery—in Mr. Pigeon's riding.

Thieves escaped with the contents of a mail truck near L'Assomption, Que., overnight and the driver was discovered Wednesday in handcuffs near the abandoned vehicle.

A post office spokesman said no cash or money orders was known to be in the mailbags.

New Satellite To Beam Olympic Games

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Syncom 3, a glittering "Olympic star" communications satellite, soared into a preliminary orbit Wednesday en route to a stationary outpost to televise the Olympic Games from Japan.

If the satellite successfully executes a number of complex manoeuvres in the next 12 days, it will come to a seeming standstill high above the mid-Pacific Ocean and be in position to speed to Canada, the United States and Europe television pictures of the Oct. 10-24 Games in Tokyo.

Syncom 3 is a research vehicle and TV is not its main assignment. But successful intercontinental transmission of pictures of the world's greatest sport spectacle would be dramatic evidence of what satellites can do to improve global communications.

The U.S. defence department also is considering use of the satellite to improve communications between Washington and South Viet Nam.

Syncom 3 showed early that it is ready to serve as a communications beacon in the sky. As it whirled over the Pacific hours after launching from Cape Kennedy, it received and beamed back to a communications ship a recording of the music of The Star Spangled Banner. Voice and teletype communications also were successful.

United States, Japanese, Canadian and European interests have earmarked nearly $1,000,000 to demonstrate Olympic TV capability with the satellite. Practically none of the transmissions will be live, principally because of the time differences. The major Olympic action will occur, for example, at hours when most North Americans are asleep.

Congolese Rebels Threaten Bukavu

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The Communist-backed rebellion that grips most of the Eastern Congo threatened Tuesday night to wrest Bukavu from the control of Premier Moise Tshombe's government.

Fragmentary radio messages from Bukavu, a provincial capital mid-way between rebel-held Albertville and Stanleyville, said there was fighting in the streets; they indicated the Congolese army garrison was pulling out.

DROVE OFF BAND

The garrison, totalling about 800 troops, last weekend drove off a rebel band that had penetrated Bukavu's outskirts. There was speculation the subsequent uprising may have been staged by a rebel fifth column within the city, a former tourist resort crowded lately with nearly 80,000 refugees.

PANIC REPORTED

The radio accounts said panic developed when the fighting broke out about 5 p.m. Subsequent messages gave the impression in the Congolese troops were falling back toward the frontier of Rwanda, less than three miles away. Bukavu's airport in Rwanda and troops of that republic's Belgian-officered army share in guard duty at the airport.

BUKAVU IMPORTANT

Since Stanleyville fell two weeks ago, Bukavu has been the only important city in the northeastern Congo in government hands. Located on a peninsula jutting into Lake Kivu, it is the capital of central Kivu Province. Most of its white residents fled earlier this month when rebels were reported moving in from the west.

The Bukavu battle developed a few hours after Tshombe's government ordered deportation of all citizens of neighboring

'There's Going to Be a Hit'

Threat to Goldwater Diverts GOP Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of a threat on the life of Senator Barry Goldwater, a plane carrying the Republican presidential nominee was diverted Wednesday from National Airport to Dulles International Airport outside Washington.

A waiting limousine took Goldwater, back from giving a speech in Springfield, Ill., away from Dulles Airport 20 miles from Washington. Goldwater's press secretary, Paul Wagner, said the senator's Lockheed Electra got orders in the air to switch from National, just outside Washington, and land at Dulles.

The nature of the threat was not immediately disclosed. BOMB THREAT
Goldwater himself said he understood it was a bomb threat. But in Springfield, Police Chief Silver Suarez said it was a threat that Goldwater was to be shot.

Chief Suarez said that at 12:52 p.m. the police department received a telephone call from a man who identified himself as Lt. Bruce Allen.

The caller told Det. Sgt. John Nolan: "There is going to be a hit on Goldwater. Do you know what a hit is?" The chief said that Nolan answered, "yes, that he's going to be shot."

"That's right," the caller replied, and hung up.

Shoeshines Fun For Girls

Shoeshine stand operated by two Victoria teenagers is latest tourist service on the Canaway. Diane Stewart, on right, 14, of 1116 St. David and Elizabeth Brimacombe, 16, 880 Victoria, set up their stand this week. "We're just doing it for fun," said girls, both students at Oak Bay High School. — (Chapman Photography)

Port Alberni Claims Nearly All Settled

VANCOUVER (CP)—More than 700 claims totalling about $1,500,000 arose from Alaska tidal wave damage at Port Alberni. It was disclosed Wednesday by the Canadian Independent Adjudicators Conference, which was retained by the provincial government to assess uninsured flood damage. When about 12 remaining claims have been settled, the total outlay will be about $1,450,000.

Canada Reaches for Red Arm

MONTREAL (CP)—Some national organizations may yet come forward with funds but the executive director of the Rehabilitation Institute of Montreal said Wednesday the institute will have to borrow enough money to pay for rights to the Soviet-made artificial arm.

The director, Dr. Gustave Gingras, saw the arm during a week's visit to the Soviet Union last month and was told he could have manufacturing rights to it for $27,000. Legal fees and other expenses involved in the acquisition would bring the cost to $38,000.

An appeal for funds was made July 24 and brought some contributions from individual donors, the doctor said, and several national organizations have indicated they might contribute to covering the cost. "But this arm is so badly needed, I'll insist to the institute that we borrow the money and then do our best afterwards to cover the loan," Dr. Gingras said.

He said in an interview that the institute could develop a limb—motorized like the Soviet model—through its own efforts. But such development would take "enormous" amounts of money and two to four years of work.

The arm is driven by a motor based in the hand and controlled by electric signals picked up by electrodes in contact with muscles of the body. Dr. Gingras said the same principle could be used to develop a motorized artificial leg.

Individual arms could be bought from the Russians for about $700 each and parts could be purchased too.

Air Units Returned

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Turkey and Greece announced Wednesday they are returning military units to the Atlantic Alliance that were withdrawn when the two neighbors seemed on the brink of war over Cyprus.

Capitals of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization had feared that the two NATO nations would come to blows and shatter the eastern flank of the West's defence line against any Soviet aggression.

Turkey was the first to announce that air units withdrawn from NATO during air raids on Greek-Cypriots on the northwest coast of Cyprus Aug. 8-9 were returned to Alliance control.

After an emergency meeting with King Constantine, Premier George Papandreu of Greece announced in Athens: "Since Turkey returned her forces to NATO control, we will also return them."

ANKARA (UPI)—Turkey Wednesday threatened to close the strategic Bosporus Strait to Soviet ships "if there is a danger of war" over Cyprus. The strait is Russia's only sea outlet to the Mediterranean.

Foreign Minister Feridun Cemal Erkin made the statement after being questioned about a Soviet freighter that was reported to be carrying war equipment to Cyprus.

"If Russia sends military aid to Cyprus we will act accordingly," the foreign minister said. "If there is a danger of war we might close the strait."

Makarios Thanks Nikita

MOSCOW (UPI)—Cyprus President Makarios has sent a message to Premier Khrushchev thanking him for "sympathetic and powerful support" in the Cyprus crisis, the Soviet Tass agency reported Wednesday.
